Difference in Climate
Difference in Hay Prices
When Drake Bought Grain
Watch the Grabbers

— By Arthur Brisbane —

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19—This was written at Hodge on the Mojave desert, east of the Cajon pass over the mountains, 90 miles from the Los Angeles Examiner office.

Motoring to the pass from the orange groves, in blossom, and the long rows of roses in full bloom, you pass automobiles coming the other way, down from Bear mountain. They carry bob sleds and toboggans fastened across radiator fronts, skis fastened to the running board. Crowds go up to pass the week-end in snow skiing and skating. Man likes change of climate and here he gets the extremes, in half a morning.

Alfalfa grown under irrigation on the desert, by this writer and many other farmers, also has its extremes. The best price offered here by the Southern Flour and Grain Co., of Atlanta, Ga., is $13.25 a ton. This individual, who raises thoroughbred horses at Allaire, N. J., 3000 miles away, pays $45 a ton there. The difference is in freight and in the hay. At least 50 per cent better alfalfa here than in the East, bright green in the bale with the blue flowers still brilliant. This writer, having other enterprises, real estate, etc., it does not matter. No sympathy requested, the hay will remain in fire proof storage.

The most thankless job on earth is supplying for man or beast, ask any farmer or James Minotto and his wife. He runs a big dairy farm at Phoenix, Ariz., delivers fine, excellent milk at 10 cents a quart, certified milk at 25 cents a quart, and loses money regularly. How can real farmers deliver milk to the dairy for four cents?

Mr. Minotto raises beef cattle on a 100,000 acre ranch, north of Phoenix, and sells the steers as yearlings to save feed. He can tell Mr. Swift of Chicago that raising good cattle is philanthropy, no business. James Minotto, who has lived all over the world, says he would rather lose money in the milk business in the climate of Arizona, than make money banking in Chicago or New York.

Tastes differ. Mr. Wiggin, president of the Chase National Bank, says he would rather make money banking in New York. The late Ogden Armour used to say that he wouldn't work away from the stock yards if you gave him his choice of any job on earth.

Saturday wheat sold in Europe at the lowest price since the days of Queen Elizabeth, in the 16th century. You could buy grain in Liverpool as cheaply as Drake bought it, when he was provisioning his ships to rob the Spaniards. The Chicago price was better here, thanks to Uncle Sam's long pocketbook, stabilizing prices by buying and not selling and thanks to the tariff.

William Rogers knows President Hoover as well as Milton knew Cromwell. You remember how powerfully Milton used to express Cromwell's thought and purpose, usually in Latin. Saturday Rogers revealed Mr. Hoover's unwillingness to hand twenty-five millions of public money to the Red Cross, to be used in national relief. Yesterday you read that the Senate, in rather tricky fashion, voted for the $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation.

The President as a matter of course will veto that foolishness if it ever comes before him. When this government decided to build the Panama Canal, it did not give $300,000,000 to the Red Cross, and say "you build it." Why burden the Red Cross with drouth and unemployment relief when is much too big a job, to say nothing of overhead wastage. Private philanthropic agencies with the best of intentions are expensive.

If you gave $25,000,000 for relief to the Red Cross and it passed the money on to the Salvation Army, and it in turn to the Y. M. C. A. and it to any one of the other benevolent agencies, when it came to paying out the money after overhead, salaries, expenses, etc., there would be about enough left to buy three sandwiches.

A congressional committee investigating Communism and Communists reports, that those gentlemen and their theories are a grave menace to democratic government. The first material question is WHAT democratic government? Where has the committee recently seen such a government? Communism means having things in common. "Dividing up." Outside of the Bible, read on Sunday, you hear little about dividing. In our civilization and from those that have anything to divide, you hear nothing about dividing.

If we ever get a democratic

JURY HEARS OF GARRETT ACCOUNTS

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gillen Tells of $28,000 in the Name of Florence Garrett

Deposits totalling approximately $28,000 in an account in the name of Florence H. Garrett in the Brookline Trust Co., were read at the Garrett trial by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gillen late today. They were during a period from January, 1926 to August, 1929, the last one single deposit, $500, being on Dec. 20, 1929.

Court adjourned for the day while Gillen was still reading a list of withdrawals from the account. He had been engaged for 20 minutes and had read only through 1926.

A bank account under the name of Florence H. Woodside was opened in the Exchange Trust Co. by Mrs. Florence H Garrett the jury at the Garrett trial was told today.

This testimony was given by John H. Cummings, bank teller, who said he knew Mrs. Garrett.

Records of an account in the Brookline Trust Co., also under the name of Florence H. Woodside, were introduced in evidence at the start of the third week of trial of Oliver B. Garrett, ex-liquor raider, Mrs. Garrett and Lillian V. Hatch on charges of conspiracy to extort.

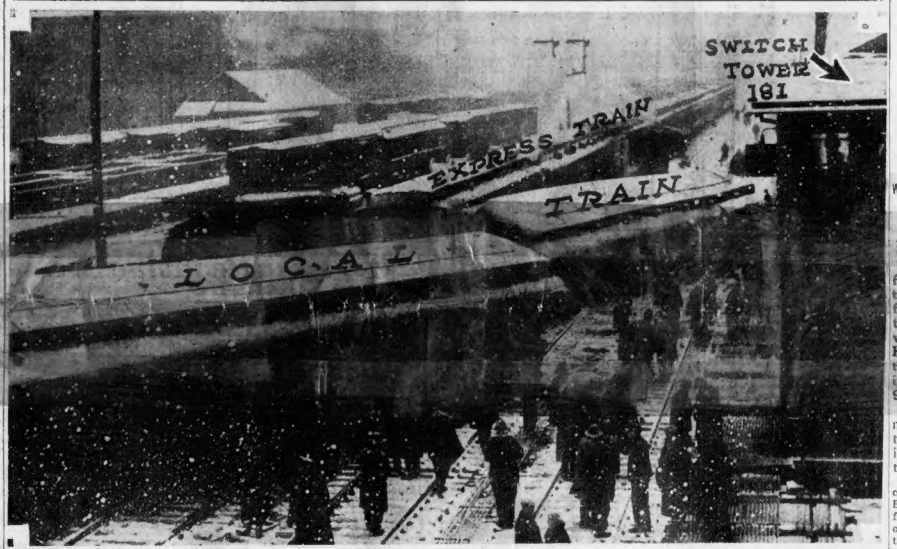
Carloads of People Near Death in Train Crash



HUGE PASSENGER CARS were tossed about like chips in the tide when the locomotive of the Colonial Express, bound out of Boston, split a switch and sideswiped a Boston-bound local train in the Readville yards at the height of the snowstorm today. This photo shows part of the tender of the Colonial's engine after it hit the local engine's tender. Behind the snow-covered coach at the left lies the Colonial's engine, a mass of wreckage. That the wreck had no fatal consequences was said to be due chiefly to chance. Note local engine remains on track. Tender was wrecked.

LOCAL AND COLONIAL EXPRESS COLLIDE

Wreckage Burns at Readville After the Crash; Relief Is Rushed to Victims

MORE PICTURES ON PAGES 2, 3 AND 5

The Colonial Express, from Boston to Washington, and a local train from Blackstone to Boston crashed in the Readville yards of the New Haven railroad today in the blinding snowstorm, injuring between 85 and 95 persons.

The engine of the Colonial flier left the rails, overturned and took fire, with its engineer pinned in the twisted wreckage.

Two of the four wooden coaches, and the tender of the Blackstone local were thrown from the rails, the tender and one of the coaches being overturned.

The Colonial Express, which pulled out of Boston at 9:30 a. m., was crossing the Readville yards just before 10 o'clock, to swing to the main line track southbound, when her engine sliced into the tender of the local train.

TRAPPED BY FIRE

Cutting off the local tender from its engine, the Colonial engine bunted the tender and following two cars from the rails—then itself turned over with the engineer, George Gladding of 315 Glenwood ave., Pawtucket, R. I., pinned in the cab.

Flames were started from the fireboy, threatening the wooden coaches of the local, and steam from the wrecked locomotive poured into the coaches, increasing the panic among the already frenzied passengers trapped inside.

Meanwhile whistles on the Sturtevant Blower Works and other factories and mills overlooking the yards were being blown as a fire signal, while at their switchboards two heroines worked speedily with their plugs, calling doctors, nurses, hospitals, fire departments and police to the scene.

They were Miss Lillian Bullard of Dedham, telephone operator at the Sturtevant plant and Miss Jennie Mich, switchboard operator of the Englander Spring Bed Co.

Within a few minutes of the accident, ambulances were rushing over the road from many points

MAYOR RECEIVES RED LEADERS

After police dispersed 200 radicals in front of City Hall today, Mayor Curley received their leaders and forced them to admit they had no recommendations to make for unemployment relief and that there was nothing he could do, so far as they knew.

"Well, we didn't come here to suggest," said Harry Canter, who was Communist party candidate for Governor at the last election.

"Of course you didn't," retorted the mayor. "You are lecturers and agitators. Now, get out of here. Go back to Moscow."

The delegation departed for the City Council chamber, where the executive committee gave them a hearing.

Besides Canter, the members of the delegation were Winfield Dwyer, of Eustis st., Roxbury, Stanley Johnson, of Shawmut ave., James Lane, of Gainsboro st., Mary Page, of the West End and Samuel Winn, of Caldor st., Roxbury, the chairman.

"If this demonstration is just a bit of Communist propaganda, go ahead and demonstrate. I enjoy it as much as you do," said the Mayor. "But if you are making a conscientious effort to help the unemployed, tell me how to do it."

No suggestions were made. Asked by the Mayor how long he had been out of work, Dwyer said he was a grocery clerk and had not had a steady job "since Coolidge was inaugurated."

DAISY SAYS SHE IS NOT THIEF

Los Angeles, Jan 19.—Daisy DeVoe, slender and vital young blonde, today denounced as false the charge she had embezzled $35,000 from her former employer, Clara Bow, the screen star and that she tried to charge W. I Gilbert, attorney for Miss Bow, $125,000 for certain ardent love letters and telegrams belonging to Miss Bow.

Miss DeVoe testified she had merely informed Gilbert that $125,000 or even $200,000 wouldn't mend my hurt feelings.

SCANDAL BARRED.

Blocked by a court's order against injecting Hollywood gossip into a grand theft trial, Atty. Nathan Freedman today suddenly ended the defense testimony of Miss DeVoe. Prosecutor David H. Clark then began cross-examining Miss DeVoe.

QUICK, HEROIC WORK SAVES LIVES AS EXPRESS AND LOCAL CRASH

FLAMES CUT ENGINEER FROM FIRED READVILLE WRECK

and several patrol wagons were released from downtown police service and sent to the scene on order of Police Supt. Michael H. Crowley.

Employes of the blower works, the bed company and of the Stafford Manufacturing Co. were the first on the scene with the Readville yard employes.

When it was seen that it would be necessary to cut Engineer Gladding out of the wreck, Matthew Steele of the Sturtevant Co. raced back and procured acetylene torches and apparatus.

While the white heat bit through the entrapping steel that held his crushed legs, Engineer Gladding calmly puffed on a cigar. When cut out of the wreckage he was rushed to Boston City Hospital.

Other men meanwhile were running along the derailed coaches of the local, shattering windows and dragging hysterical women to safety.

WOMEN ARE FRANTIC.

The women, according to James L. Manning an engineer at the Englander Spring Bed Co. plant, were beating on the glass of the steam-filled coaches and shrieking to be released.

Most of the injured were believed to have been passengers on the Blackstone local, the injuries to those of the flier being confined mainly to cuts and bruises suffered when they were hurled from their seats by the sudden stopping of the train.

During the rescue work and despatching of the injured to hospitals, nearly 200 policemen were on duty in the yards, while others directed traffic on the roads

Within a short time after the wreck occurred, hundreds of curious people began to flock into the area, and the wet, snow-covered roads were filled with cars, their drivers looking for places to park.

AMBULANCE WRECKED

The Norwood town ambulance, speeding to the scene of the wreck, was itself wrecked on account of the slippery road conditions. Driven by Fireman Joseph T. McAuliffe, the ambulance was in a crash at Court and Washington sts., Dedham, with a State Department of Public Works machine driven by Herbert Buffon of Washington st., Brighton. Neither driver was injured.

One of the heroine workers was Dr. Harriet Rogers of Norwood, who although injured herself when she shattered windows and crawled through to safety with other women, had her wounds bound up and then proceeded to treat others of the passengers.

She also was one of those who quieted the frantic women imprisoned in the local train coaches.

Although railroad officials themselves declined to give an opinion as to cause of the wreck, Jeffre Willard, signal man in charge of signals at point of the wreck, said that the lights were set for the local to proceed and that signals were set against the express. The snow was blinding at the time, he said.

Train workers in the yard, however, said they believed the Colonial Flier split a switch.

Trapped Women Batter Vainly at Windows of Local Coach

Engineer L. E. Wylie of the Blackstone local, living at 609 East Fifth st. South Boston, and his fireman, Arthur Paynter of Appleton st., Boston, had a remarkable escape from injury and possible death.

Their tender was hit just back of the engine cab and coupling, and the tender was tossed off the rails like a crushed soap box, the freed engine continuing along the rails.

INJURED TO BOSTON

After the more seriously injured had been sent to hospitals and the emergency rooms of factories others of the injured were treated in the office of the American Express Co.

Afterward they and others of the passengers on both trains were brought to Boston on a relief train made up of the South Station and sent to Readville.

It took wreckers until 2:40 p. m. to clear the Boston-bound rails of wreckage, and it was expected that it would take until 5:30 to clear the south-bound rails and open them for traffic.

The wreckers lifted the derailed coaches of the Blackstone local back on the rails without difficulty, but because of the broken wheels, had difficulty in handling the heavy, super-powered locomotive, which blocked the south-bound rails.

In Boston, the passengers who had been on the Colonial flyer were placed on a special train and started out again for their destination over the line through Dorchester, routing back to the main line beyond Readville.

Two priests, the Rev. John Dignan of the Church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park, and the Rev. David F. Regan of St. Ann's Church, Readville, also hastened to the scene when informed of the accident.

They stood by the imprisoned engineer in the Colonial Express, prepared to administer the last rites of the church, if this should be necessary.

Gladding's fireman, Thomas McCue of 8th st., Providence, was the mystery of the wreck for several hours. After the first excitement had died down, the men could not remember having seen McCue or having checked him out to a hospital.

The wreck was searched thoroughly in belief that he might have been hurled from the Colonial cab and buried in the debris, but there was no trace of a body. Finally a doctor was found who said he had treated a Thomas McCue of Providence at the scene, but he did not know where he had gone.

The flood of telephone calls pouring through the switchboard at police headquarters finally resulted in part of the board going suddenly out of commission.

Supt. Crowley had foreseen this, however, and when he realized the seriousness of the accident, had repair men dispatched hastily to police headquarters from the telephone company, to be on hand in case of such a contingency.

PROBE IS STARTED

Railroad officials declined to comment on the wreck or advance any theory as to its cause, began an investigation immediately.

They went to the hospital and questioned Engineer Gladding of the Colonial flier, then they questioned the engine crew of the Blackstone local and the man on duty in Signal Tower 181, beside which the crash occurred.

On orders by Capt. James Watkins at police headquarters, the various divisions of the Boston department sent 223 men and 17 ambulances to the scene of the wreck, Capt. Hanrahan was in charge there.

Division 2B, downtown traffic division, first sent six and then Capt. Bernard Hoppe and the sergeants assigned to the streets and got 45 more men from their traffic posts and ordered them to Readville. Men were sent from every station except the harbor police.

RESCUE WORK AT WRECK IS PRAISED

Councillor Norton Lauds Efforts of Doctors, Police and the Volunteer Workers

City Councillor Clement A. Norton, of Hyde Park, who heard the train crash and went to the scene, said:

It was a splendid piece of cooperation, the manner in which the relief agencies worked. Within five minutes, Doctors David Norton, Chas. Stack, Carr and Winslow were on the job. The superintendent of the B. F. Sturtevant Company a few hundred yards away, anticipating that an acetylene outfit to cut open the cars and engines would be needed, rushed a crew with their outfits to cut into the cars if need be. Due to their efoits the engineer was saved."

FIRST AID STATION SET UP

"The Englander Bed Company, situated 200 yards away from the scene of the accident, threw open their entire ground floor, spread out their beds, turned on the heat and injured persons were carried to a comfortable retreat, where an emergency hospital had been set up. Four ambulances with doctors reached the scene, from the Boston City Hospital, within 15 minutes. All injured were cared for and sent off to hospitals after emergency treatment within 20 minutes.

"Captain Bernard Hanrahan of Boston Police Station 18 together with Special Officer John Brannahan had 50 police officers on the job within 15 minutes.

MAYOR IN TOUCH

"That deaths did not take place on the spot and more serious injuries ensue was undoubtedly due to the splendid co-operation on the part of all. Mayor Curley was in constant phone communication with the New Haven signal tower at the scene of the accident."

WRECK TERROR IS DESCRIBED BY WOMEN

Express Engineer Freed From Peril With the Aid of Gas Torches

From her cot in the City Hospital Miss Elizabeth Lakin, 32, of Varnum st., Arlington, a buyer in a Boston department store, repeated the horror she went through as one of the victims of today's railroad wreck in Readville.

"I had been to Uxbridge for the week-end and was on my way back to Boston when it happened," she said. "The whole thing is like a nightmare. I was sitting in the second car of the local, writing a note when suddenly I was thrown violently forward, and backward, then against the window and finally into the aisle where a number of other persons had been hurled.

"I knew I was hurt, but was so excited I didn't feel it much. There were several children in the car who began to cry and, their mothers started to scream. Someone in blue overalls, I imagine he was a train man, helped me to rise, then I picked up my suitcase and broke the window. Someone outside pulled me through the opening.

STANDS IN SNOW

"I stood in the snow, my dress a perfect mess, and covered with blood; my feet without overshoes. I was sickened by an odor from the engine—probably coal gas. Many other people were sick from it, too.

"The car had been filled with steam and that's what terrified me so. I was afraid the train was going to blow up.

"I was taken eventually to the Stafford Machine Shop, where I was given a stimulant and they bandaged my leg."

Mrs. Bessie Cushing, 42, of Norwood, also in City Hospital, said:

"It is my custom to come to Boston every Monday to buy whatever I need for my store.

CRIES FOR CHILDREN

"I think I was in the first car but I'm not sure. I only know that I was sitting by a window reading a newspaper and another woman was in the seat with me. It seemed as if something hit me hard in the back and I fainted.

"Next thing I knew someone was pulling me through a car window and I heard people crying 'fire.' Also I heard glass breaking all around me. Then I thought my end had come and I began to cry. 'I want to see my children! I must see my children.'

"I have two daughters, Fannie, 18 and Bertha, 19, both students at Boston University. I wanted to see them. I thought I was going to die.

"After I got outside they bandaged my leg and I thought they took me to the Norwood Hospital. I have just learned I am in Boston City Hospital."

Mrs. Cushing keeps a dry goods store in Norwood.

Chamberlin

The new record is a flight made by a plane to a filling station. Chamberlin yesterday hopped off to Baltimore for a load of fuel and returned here after purchasing it.

The situation developed when the flier discovered he was all out of a certain type of the fuel, which he has been using in test flights at the flying school he conducts here.

Count Luckner After Sharks With Rubber Line

New York, Jan. 19—The sharks of the Bahamas are going to catch the devil soon, the old "Sea Devil," Count Felix von Luckner is going after them with a rubber line.

Count von Luckner

The famous German sea raider of World War days today issued a declaration of war on the gray fins that swim about the Bahamas. The fish line is a rubber rope, 100 feet in length, to the end of which is attached a two-foot hook. The hook will be baited with some shark delicacy and allowed to trail overboard.

This is the theory, when the shark takes hold and starts away it will get just so far when the rubber line will snap it back. The farther it goes the farther back it will snap.

Snow Storm Train Wreck Victims in Forest Hills Hospital

MRS. DELIA BARRETT — MRS. HARRY CHUTE — NURSE BROUGHALL — DR. RALPH FOGG — NURSE O'LEARY

SUFFERING FROM SEVERE INJURIES sustained in the Readville wreck, two of the victims are here shown at the Forest Hills Hospital. Mrs. Barrett of 58 Savin ave., Dorchester, suffered bruises to the knee. Mrs. Chute of 262 Lenox st., Norwood, has injuries to her right knee and both her ankles. (Staff photos.)

AMONG THE SERIOUSLY INJURED was Dr. Fogg, 76, a dentist of Walpole st., Norwood. He was in the forward coach of the local and was hurled into a coal car. Mrs. Angelena R. O'Leary, superintendent of nurses at Forest Hills Hospital, is shown with him.

Maimed Engineer of Express Freed by Aid of Torches

John O'Malley, an ambulance nurse at the Boston City hospital, was one of the earliest arrivals on the scene of the wreck and gave a vivid description of conditions as he found them.

"The Colonial Express," said O'Malley, "ploughed right through the tender of the local.

"When I reached there, the Colonial engine had overturned and Engineer George Gladding was pinned solidly underneath the wreckage.

"I, in company with several firemen, policemen and other rescue workers, started trying to get him out.

"It was impossible to move the engine and finally we had to get torches and burn away a part of the locomotive before we could get the injured man out.

"He was rushed to the hospital with two badly shattered legs and several other injuries."

Frank Glennon, of City Hospital, first driver to appear at the scene of the wreck with an ambulance, said:

"When I reached the scene I saw six huge cars toppled over each other like so many cigar boxes. There was no flames, but billows of smoke.

"Firemen were already cutting away the wreckage to pull out the engineer.

"People were hysterical. Women screamed. A first aid station was opened at the New England Bed Co. I was ordered back to City Hospital with four victims. I remember one had a crushed chest, another a fractured ankle, and a third a fractured hip toe.

Crowd Jams South Station Waiting for the Injured

A curious crowd jammed South Station at noon today when a report circulated that the Colonial Flier was coming in with the injured from the Readville wreck.

Hundreds of men and women gathered at the gate when stretchers from three hospitals and six police divisions were carried into the station to await the train.

Police Divisions 6, 9, 11, 12 and 14 were on hand with police ambulances; Division 10 offered conveyance with its automobile. From the City Hospital there were 3 ambulances, the Massachusetts General Hospital and the House of Detention were also represented in the relief corps.

A detail of police handled the crowd, while interns stood over their stretchers ready for action when the crack flier made its appearance.

RAMSAY M'DONALD PLEDGES DOMINION HOME RULE FOR INDIA

PARDONS FOR 50,000 OFFERED

Premier Is Sorry Gandhi Did Not Attend the Round Table; Reads Message From King

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—Ramsay MacDonald today brought the Indian Round Table Conference to a close, extending a welcoming hand to India as a dominion in the British commonwealth of nations with full responsible self-government.

The work begun at London will be continued without interruption, he said, and the new Indian constitution will be passed through the British Parliament as soon as it is completed.

This pronouncement of British policy pledged liberation to India's 50,000 political prisoners if "civil quiet is proclaimed and assured" in India.

The Prime Minister read a message from King George saying:

"A new chapter has opened in the history of India."

In a long declaration of British government policy, which the Prime Minister read carefully, the weight of government support was pledged to the findings of the committees of the round table conference which has been laboring in London for two months.

ALONG U. S. LINES

These envisage a national federal government of India along the general lines of the United States Congress, with a Senate and House of Representatives and with the executive power in the hands of a governor-general who will have a Cabinet of responsible Indian ministers chosen from the national assembly.

The governor-general will wield authority as the British sovereign's nominal executive, as in other British dominions.

During the period of transition the financial powers of the new Indian Government and the fields of defense and foreign relations will be safeguarded by reservations placing them within the jurisdiction of the British imperial Government.

REFERS TO GANDHI

A reference to Mahatma Gandhi was seen when the prime minister said he regretted that all the elements in India were not represented at the round table.

"He who stirs up dissension and suspicion among any people is doing a disservice," he said.

The Indians, said the Prime Minister, must settle their own communal disputes, for Britain is neither pro-Hindu, pro-Moslem nor pro-any section of the Indian population.

TELLS OF SAFEGUARDS,

"The attitude of the British Government," he told the assembled delegates, "is nothing more than an overpowering desire to let you settle your own affairs."

He said also that the necessary steps would be taken for the separation of Burma from India. This was an outstandnig issue of the conference.

The delegates gathered for this final plenary session in full oriental regalia, the Indian princes wearing ornate turbans and flashing jewels and the women delegates clad in flowing gowns with multicolored shawls.

When the prime minister had finished several Indian delegates spoke briefly. None expressed opposition to the government's policy as proclaimed by the premier.

Hoover May Make Klein Secretary

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—President Hoover is considering transferring Dr. Julius Klein from the Department of Commerce to the White House and placing him in the secretarial post vacated by George Akerson, it was learned today. Klein at present is assistant secretary of commerce.

4000 Printers in Madrid on Strike

Madrid, Jan. 19 (AP)—Four thousand members of the printing crafts went on strike today for shorter hours and a 20 cents increase in the daily wage. Newspapers were exempted by the union.

Prince of Wales Sails for So. America After Delay

Santander, Spain, Jan. 19 (AP)—After an exciting but fatiguing trip from Paris, the Prince of Wales and his youngest brother, Prince George, were enroute today aboard the liner Oropesa on an 18,000 mile journey which will culminate with their inauguration of the trade exhibition in Buenos Aires in March.

The Princes were many hours late in reaching Santander, where they found the Oropesa, straining at its leash, hauled up to a dock ready to begin the transatlantic trip. The ship is to stop at Corunna today, proceeding thence to Hamilton, Bermuda, and Kingston, Jamaica. The royal passengers will touch Central America and go on down the west South American coast.

Trouble began for the Princes Saturday night when, 30 miles below Bordeaux, their train was held up by the derailment of a northbound train. French railroad officials hurriedly sent a special train north to carry them to Hendaye.

Arriving at Hendaye four hours late, the travellers transferred to motor cars, and rode over rough mountain roads to Santander. At Bilabo the automobile occupied by the Prince of Wales careened into that of Prince George, but no one was injured.

It was 9:30 p. m. before the motor cars conveying the Princes and their entourage drew up before the quay in Santander, where a large crowd awaited them. The Princes hurried aboard the Oropesa, which left shortly afterward.

Where Flames Cut Steel That Pinioned Engineer Under Burning Wreck

WHEN THE COLONIAL EXPRESS crashed into a New Haven Railroad Boston-bound local at Readville today, the engine of the flier turned over and then caught fire. Pinned in the wreckage, his upturned face pelted by the soggy snow flakes, was Engineer George Gladding. Workmen with torches cut the steel that pinioned him and he was brought to Boston, the most seriously injured of the victims. Note the tender, at right with twisted wheels, still upright. 'Grand Man of Auto Game' Finds Work Best of Fun

Detroit, Jan. 19 (AP)—Up on the 22d floor of the Dime Bank Building, approaching his 86th birthday, a white haired and white bearded man who made rifles for soldiers during the Civil War and airplane motors in the World War is carrying on because his "plans are not yet quite mature," and because work provides the "best fun" he has.

Henry M. Leland, the "grand old man" of the automobile industry, with mind as alert as it was back in 1890 when he predicted the future of internal combustion engines and with a physical vitality that is the marvel of his friends and acquaintances.

To the office comes a steady stream of visitors, mostly would-be inventors who seek his advice on the merit of certain devices.

ADMITS NO DEFEAT

Coupling an unfailing optimism with his mental and physical alertness, this outstanding figure of the automobile world doesn't admit such a thing as defeat. When he was 75 he organized the Lincoln Motor Company chiefly for the production of the Liberty motor. Some time after the war the company had financial troubles, and it seemed that a career that had been so replete in achievement was to be capped by failure.

FIGHTING COMEBACK.

Leland made a fighting comeback however, after the Lincoln Co. had been taken over as a receiver's sale by Henry Ford. A bitter fight, still in progress, between Leland and his old friend, Ford, resulted from the latter's purchase of the Lincoln properties. Leland claimed Ford agreed to reimburse certain stockholders.

Today Leland is still thinking of improvements that can be made in engines and other moving parts of the vehicle whose future he foresaw when most people scoffed.

Riveter Falls Seven Floors; Only Bruised

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19 (AP)—Frank Crabtree of St. Paul, a riveter working on a new building, fell seven stories today and apparently suffered only minor injuries.

He was working on the 18th floor when a plank broke and he hurtled downward. He crashed through a flooring of two inch planks on the 16th floor of the uncompleted building and finally was stopped by a concrete form on the 11th floor.

WICKERSHAM'S REPORT IS IN

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Law Enforcement Commission's prohibition report was submitted to President Hoover today.

Chairman Wickersham arrived at the White House proper just before 9 a. m. He carried the long-awaited document in a bulky envelope.

The President soon went over to his offices.

At the White House later it was announced that the President had begun to study the report.

His engagement list was held to the minimum so that he might devote the entire day to the task. He expects to send it to Congress tomorrow noon.

The report of the commission as a whole has been described as largely factual, but embracing recommendations for improving conditions in connection with Volstead enforcement.

The word has been given that no recommendation for repeal or modification is included, in this main report, at least. Sources close to the commission said no effort is made to gloss over facts, either favorable or unfavorable to the dry laws, however.

The report as submitted includes individual opinions from among the eleven commissioners. How many dissented from the majority report is expected to be made known only through publication of the documents themselves.

PHONE CO. TO SPEND MILLIONS

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 19 (AP)—A construction program of $10,100,000 for 1931 was outlined in an announcement today by officials of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

This sum, it was pointed out, is about 12 per cent greater than the average annual amount of construction during the past five years, and embodies projects designed for use only in the immediate future. It was estimated that slightly larger appropriations would be needed in 1932.

Of this sum, $2,160,000 is to be spent for conversion from manual to dial telephone. Other projects include completion and equipment of new buildings in Waterbury, Torrington and Hartford, and the beginning of construction on a new building in Westport.

GUSHER PERILS OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Jan. 19 (AP)—An oil well blew wild inside the city limits of Oklahoma City today, injuring a workman and imperiling the "doorstep" oil field and adjacent industrial and residential districts.

The well, No. 1, Wapaco, is about a mile from the city's principal business block. Lower connections were cut by sand and blown out under great pressure as the well was being opened for production.

Two companies of the Oklahoma National Guard were ordered out. All city firemen were ordered on duty. All fires in a radius of one-half mile around the well were ordered extinguished.

All trains were stopped on the main lines of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and Rock Island railroads because of fire hazard.

DEATH CHEATS HOSPITAL MOB

Shreveport, La., Jan. 19 (AP)—Death from peritonitis claimed Leman McDaniel, negro, at midnight, and dispersed a militant crowd of 1300 persons, who had filled the hospital where he was being treated for wounds suffered in a police gun fight. The fight was fatal to two officers, struck by bullets.

Heedless of the pleas of authorities, a few members of the crowd climbed an unguarded fire escape and gained the negro ward on the third floor of the hospital before McDaniel's death, but easy talk after three of the group had been called into the room by Dr. E. L. Sanderson, superintendent, and shown the body. Dr. Sanderson said peritonitis developed in one of the wounds.

The entire police force, augmented by all available sheriff's deputies and a score of firemen, held most of the crowd to the ground floors of the hospital.

Mayor J. G. Palmer, Sheriff Tom Hughes and Captain Harry Stahl of the National Guard unit here, pleaded with the crowd that order be maintained.

Just before death, McDaniel denied shooting the officers, police said, naming another Negro, Andrew Till, as the slayer. Till was arrested.

government, and it ever faces a "grave menace" it will come from gentlemen seeking to grab everything, not from would-be dividers. If Congress can take care of the grabbers, at Muscle Shoals, for instance, it need not worry about Communistic dividers. They will change their minds, as soon as they get something to divide.

The committee says the "Reds" are closely united and obey the orders of Moscow, absolutely.

That is as foolish as what the Reds say of capitalism, and even more inaccurate. Where 10 Communists are gathered together there are 10 distinct and separate plans for governing the world. And no real Communist believes in taking orders from anybody. Look at Trotsky thrown out by Stalin, Danton beheaded by Robespierre, Robespierre guillotined, Marat stabbed to death by Charlotte Corday. Congress should watch the grabbers, and let the comic artists attend to the Communists.

JOBLESS TO GET AID BY LOANS

Philadelphia, Jan. 19 (AP)—A plan for a loan system to aid needy families who do not care to accept charity was announced today by Mayor Mackey's committee for unemployment relief.

Under the plan loans will be granted to laboring and clerical workers with good employment records, who are essentially victims of the unemployment situation, and who, in normal times, made at least a living wage.

Such loans are to be confined to heads of families where there are children; the loans being made husband and wife jointly. No loans will be granted to unmarried men or to families consisting only of husband and wife, except under extraordinary circumstances.

BIG NAVAL BILL IS APPROVED

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—The administration's $80,000,000 naval construction bill was approved today by the Senate naval committee, including provision for a six inch gun cruiser, which was rejected by the House Naval Committee.

The committee voted unanimously to report the bill which provides for one aircraft carrier; one flying deck cruiser with 6 inch guns; one six inch gun cruiser, and four submarines.

An amendment, recommended by the Navy Department to appropriate $3,000,000 for experimentation with Diesel engines also was approved.

The House Naval Committee approved a bill to authorize the expenditure of $400,000 on the naval war college at Newport, R. I.

Bodies of Royal Irish Pair in 2000-Year-Old Tomb

Carrick-on-Shannon, Ireland, Jan. 19 (INS)—The 2000-year-old tomb of two of Ireland's royal lovers has been unearthed near here under a hill called Sheebeg, or the "Hill of the Little Fairy." Ancient historians state that Sheebeg was the burial ground of many kings and queens of Ireland.

After the removal of about 20 tons of earth, the entrance to a long passage which led to the vault was discovered. Entrance to this passage was blocked by a huge dressed rock, which was made to fit into the aperture serving as a door. After considerable difficulty this was removed and a rock chamber containing skeletons of a man and a woman were disclosed.

In the skull of the male skeleton was found a "brain ball," which indicated that the remains were of a great king or warrior.

It was an ancient custom to remove the brains of a person of high birth after death and to mix them with lime. They were then deposited with the remains.

Further exploration is being carried out to find arms, treasure and armor.

EDWARDS AGAIN RALLIES AS END NEARS

General Making Grim Fight for His Life After Doctors Fear Pneumonia

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards made another gallant rally in the face of death today, at the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, and his physicians now believe he will recover.

He is still in a very serious condition, but the doctors were greatly encouraged by improvement he showed after sinking alarmingly last night.

Late this afternoon they indicated to friends that they thought he would "pull through." Their only formal bulletin today was issued shortly before noon and was as follows:

"Gen. Edwards had a comfortable night after midnight. His temperature, pulse and respiration have lowered, and there is no further evidence of trouble in the lungs.

"He is still very seriously sick but has taken nourishment satisfactorily.

(Signed)

"DRS. ROBEY, ROGERS and MILLER.

COL. HYATT ENCOURAGED

Col. John W. Hyatt, who is spending hours each day and night serving the wartime leader of "New England's Own," said:

"It looks very encouraging."

After the dressings were changed late yesterday, congestion was noted in the lungs and from then until midnight Drs. William H. Robey, Richard M. Miller, Horatio Rogers and David Cheever worked over the patient.

They announced that his condition had taken a turn for the worse, his temperature had risen and it seemed probable that pneumonia was developing, which would mean the end of the veteran soldier. But once more the patriot responded surprisingly well to treatment.

The turn for the better was first reported by hospital officials early today while the doctors were on their way to resume their vigil at the bedside, this report being:

"The general shows quite an improvement."

Mrs. Charles Otis of Cleveland, sister of Gen. Edwards, and her son, William, went to the sick room last night when his condition was alarming. They came here last week after the emergency operation for an intestinal obstruction, which still must be corrected by another operation, it is understood, if the general lives.

Van Sweringen May Not Acquire D. & H.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Col. J. Taber Lovee, vice-president and general manager of the Delaware & Hudson railroad, said today there was little or no possibility of the Van Sweringen interests acquiring the Delaware & Hudson. A dispatch from Providence said William H. Boyd, general counsel for the Chesapeake & Ohio, and President John J. Bonet of the C. & O. would announce plans for extending the road to Providence through acquisition of the Delaware & Hudson, connecting with the Boston & Maine at Mechanicville, N. Y.

MID-YEAR TESTS AT YALE ARE ABOLISHED

New Haven, Jan. 19 (AP)—Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale University announced today that Yale has adopted several vital changes in the college curriculum which will go into effect next year.

Chief among the changes are new requirements for degrees, the abolition of the mid-year examinations, the inauguration of three reading periods and changes in the method of instruction.

These changes have for their purpose the emphasis of method and mastery of subject rather than the acquisition of a certain number of credits.

The changes will place the responsibility and initiative for a comprehensive and useful education more directly on the shoulders of the students and automatically weed from the college those who are not in college primarily for an education.

NIAGARA SLIDE MAKES 2 FALLS

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Niagara Falls today boasts two horseshoe falls instead of one. The second one, created by a series of rock slips Saturday night and early morning, is much smaller than the famous horseshoes between Goat Island and the Canadian shore, but in the opinion of geologists it will grow.

The 1000-foot crest of the American falls prior to Saturday night was in practically a straight line. The rock slip has created a cleft in the line about 200 feet from Luna Island.

The U-shaped indentation in the brink created by the slide is estimated to be 150 to 200 feet deep and 150 feet in width.

Dr. Reginald H. Pearum, geology professor at the University at Buffalo, said today that while erosion was the main cause of the slide Saturday night, winter weather and the ice mass crack and scars in the rock surface, undoubtedly were responsible in part for the fall of the crest.

Cook, British Mine Leader, Loses Leg

London, Jan. 19 (AP)—A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Miners Federation and one of the most widely known of British labor leaders, today had his right leg amputated above the knee. The operation was made necessary by the aggravation of an old injury. His condition was said to be as satisfactory as could be expected.

Two Ships Wrecked in Black Sea Storm

Istanbul, Turkey, Jan. 19 (AP)—Two vessels, the British steamer Eaton Catlen and the Turkish ship Yeshil Irmak, were wrecked in the disastrous storm that swept the Black Sea last night and continued today. No lives were reported lost.

SENATE ASKED TO DELAY RED CROSS VOTE

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP)—With a total expending, Senate administration leaders today sought to postpone consideration of the proposed $25,000,000 appropriation for the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, Majority Leader Tilson of the House announced, off the floor, he would make every effort possible to defeat the appropriation which is opposed by President Hoover.

Senator Reed (R.), Pennsylvania, asked delay in Senate consideration until Feb. 9 to permit the Red Cross to complete its campaign for $10,000,000 in private subscriptions.

The drive cannot succeed if the appropriation is approved, he said.

CHILDREN HUNGRY.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, agreed, however to ask immediate consideration and his colleague from Arkansas, Senator Caraway, protest for action.

Caraway said he knew of innumerable instances where school children were being given one meal a day and families were living on $1 for two weeks.

Referring to President Hoover's announcement last night of a national committee of prominent men, including Alfred E. Smith, Owen D. Young and John W. Davis, to sponsor the Red Cross drive, Caraway said it was made "for political effect on the eve of Senator Reed's motion."

$667,000 REPORTED

"It was not expected to add a dollar to the fund," he contended.

The Red Cross reported receipt of $667,000 in its $10,000,000 campaign.

After more than two hours debate Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, made the point the Reed motion was out of order because of an agreement requiring that the Senate vote today on the appropriation.

Vice President Curtis sustained Norris.

Tax on Radio and Patent Medicines Urged

Editor Boston American:

I would like, through the Boston American, to issue a statement concerning a tax on radio, radio tubes and parts, and also patent medicines sold in the Commonwealth.

Under the provisions of the old age pension act, there has not yet been any serious discussion as to how money is to be obtained, other than two petitions that have been filed with the clerk of the House. The commissioner of taxation filed one to tax beverages, and the other I filed to tax radios, radio tubes and parts, along with patent medicines.

Under the provisions of the pension act it is going to cost the Commonwealth millions of dollars yearly to hold up the purpose of which the act is intended, this money must come from whatever the Legislature sees fit to do, either by appropriation or a tax levy.

Every citizen of the Commonwealth is interested in the old age pensions and they should be interested as to where this money is going to come from.

Some of the members of the Legislature are going to offer this and that solution but it will never to my opinion reach the point unless part of the money is appropriated and by tax levy. So that is why I suggested that a tax levy be placed on radio and patent medicines because the radio is a big factor and could afford to be taxed because, in spite of the business depression, radio's sales reached $500,000,000 in 1930.

I claim that the money for the old age pensions should come from those who can well afford it, and to my mind radio and patent medicines are well able to stand a tax levy.

How Wealthy People Could Aid Jobless

Editor Boston American:

Abraham Lincoln said about a man pinching in public affairs and accused of attempting to swindle the government out of a large amount of money, "I cannot understand why any man should be so eager after money. Wealth is simply a superfluity of what we don't need."

And now, Mr. Editor, I am wondering if it would do any good to appeal to the wealthy people to open their summer homes and paint up and clean up. It would put a good many of us to work instead of waiting another six weeks for spring work, in these times of stress. It's pretty hard to give a child a home, as I certainly have had my share of idleness.

Two Reasons in Favor of Finger Printing

Editor Boston American:

I read in Boston American of January 14 what Max Henry Newman thinks about finger-prints. He thinks if Police Commissioner Hultman endorses it it is an insult to the people of Boston.

I admire Police Commissioner Hultman's idea to have each person finger-printed.

I do not see why it should be an insult to the people to be finger-printed. Every good person would like to be finger-printed. For several reasons it is a good idea, but I shall mention two.

First, all the criminals that have a police record would be caught, or else they would bear it out of U. S. A.

Second, if a person is found sick or dead on the street or drowned and cannot be identified by his relatives and friends by description, it would be easy to identify him.

Wants Care Used In Taking Saving

Editor Boston American:

Now that the state of Massachusetts is about to take unclaimed savings in savings bank deposits that have been in this condition for 30 years, greater care in taking them must be exercised than the careless past procedures of this kind. I believe that all due care will be taken to find those who are justly entitled these deposits, but the parties making them were very reserved about their business.

What I am getting at is that the utmost care should be exercised in not taking those who have rights to those savings before they are stampeded into the state treasury. We must not repeat a mistake of the past.

Polite Man Finds It Doesn't Always Pay

Editor Boston American:

I would like to be respectful of the rights of women on Boston streets. I am a sort of a self-starter of this ambition. I do not want any one to advise me on it. The other day, one of those cold days I stood in front of one of the swinging doors of a large department store.

A squad of women came along. It was bargain day. I stood as a polite gracious sentinel before this swinging door, allowing a swarm of women to swing the door. I stood there in this duty of being very polite, allowing women to precede me in using that door. Women kept passing until I lost my polite equilibrium and made a spring at the door as I wanted to be on time in business. I got into the space of the door? overhearing some female in the background ejaculating a stinger by words, "Isn't he a brute!" Yet I had stood as a polite gentleman at that door for over 15 minutes. Did I deserve this rockdodger?

Praises Editorial, and Sees Hoover Doomed

Editor Boston American:

Whoever wrote the editorial on page 1 of Wednesday's Boston American, "Will the Senate Defend the Rights of the Public?" did a wonderful job. At first I thought it was by Mr. Hearst.

It is vigilance of this kind which makes the privilege of being a citizen worth while.

Mr. Hoover is definitely overboard. He has shown lack of leadership and regard for the American people.

No matter whom the Republicans trot out, he is doomed to defeat, be he Coolidge or Morrow. And the same goes for Mr. Fuller when he tosses his shiny topper into the awful ring.

Looks like good old times again—pre-war—with Smith or Roosevelt in the chair. It won't be long now.

Eager to Have Tribute Paid to Horace Mann

Editor Boston American:

Why it is that school teachers who do more than any one country to teach young ideas how to shoot are never memorialized by a monument? We have monuments to generals, statesmen, scientists, women and others, but school teachers are passed over. We should have a monument on the State House grounds to Horace Mann.

Dennis A. McCarthy, of Arlington, has just told us in "reland that school teachers are not passed over. Michael Doyle, of Ballymote, County Sligo, Ireland, has a life sized statue to honor him. Let us begin to remember Horace Mann with more distinction in this country.

Has Charles W. Eliot a life sized monument? Why not?

Finds Democracy Is Stifled in Education

Editor Boston American:

In a vain and ridiculous attempt to mimic the Continent, our educators have placed upon us the theory of idealism, the precursor of autocracy, intolerance and oppression. I contend that the spirit of liberty cannot exist in an education which stifles democracy.

Pedantic Ed.

What I am getting at is that the utmost care should be exercised in not taking those who have rights to those savings before they are stampeded into the state treasury. We must not repeat a mistake of the past.

Polite Man Finds It Doesn't Always Pay

Editor Boston American:

I would like to be respectful of the rights of women on Boston streets. I am a sort of a self-starter of this ambition. I do not want any one to advise me on it. The other day, one of those cold days I stood in front of one of the swinging doors of a large department store.

A squad of women came along. It was bargain day. I stood as a polite gracious sentinel before this swinging door, allowing a swarm of women to swing the door. I stood there in this duty of being very polite, allowing women to precede me in using that door. Women kept passing until I lost my polite equilibrium and made a spring at the door as I wanted to be on time in business. I got into the space of the door? overhearing some female in the background ejaculating a stinger by words, "Isn't he a brute!" Yet I had stood as a polite gentleman at that door for over 15 minutes. Did I deserve this rockdodger?

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Some people seem to regard us as still the reckless, happy-go-lucky, irresponsible boys that we were 12 years ago; seem to think we wouldn't know what to do with several hundred dollars; afraid we would squander it in riotous living.

No, folks. We wouldn't squander it. We are older now. A fellow learns a lot in 12 years. A dollar looks different to us now than it did then—those times—when we would spend a 10-franc note today—thinking that tomorrow it might be buried beneath the rest of the Marne.

We were different then. And when I stop and think of it—you were different, too. You didn't seem to care how much money was squandered then. Why, you didn't think anything of paying a civilian 12 or 15 times as much as you did us. You didn't think anything of giving fat bonuses to people who had already amassed a fortune.

To the majority of us this money now would mean an investment which would bring us financial independence in our old age.

We are not asking any favors; just what belongs to us; just a little on account.

LEAGUE MAKES TRAITORS OF OFFICIALS

Geneva, Jan. 19—"Tragic results" may follow from the requirement that new League of Nations officials must subscribe to an oath to the league, in the opinion of Prof. Giuseppe Gallavresi of Italy.

Henceforth, all officials, even Americans whose country does not belong to the League, will be required to take the oath.

Prof. Gallavresi speaks with authority on the oath question, since he was a member of the special committee which drafted the plan for secretariat reform, and was the Italian representative on the assembly committee which drew the oath.

FIRST DUTY TO LEAGUE

"In normal times it is certainly true that a League official who takes the oath owes his first obligation to the League of Nations," he said.

Prof. Gallavresi hesitated before replying to the question as to what would be the consequences to an oath-bound League official in the event of war, or under the application by the League of the military or economic sanctions of the covenant.

"First, I confess," he said slowly, "would raise a serious, even a tragic, problem, so far as the individual official were concerned.

"In case of a war involving his own country, the individual would have to choose probably between two courses:

"1—Resign from the League and return to fulfill his obligations in his country, or

"2—Remain loyal to his League oath, with the likelihood he would have to renounce his national citizenship.

MUST BE TRAITOR TO ONE

"In such a contingency, which we all hope will never occur, I can foresee that tragic results might follow. Whatever course the individual might choose, he would be liable to be branded as a traitor to his country, or as false to his League oath.

"Further, in countries where military service is compulsory, he would probably be branded as a deserter if he remained at the League and did not fulfill his national obligations.

"There is no doubt that the requirement of an oath of loyalty of officials raises some extremely complicated questions."

Two of the most important questions to face it in years were before the League council as it convened today.

The first was fixing of a date and place of an international disarmament conference; the second was the German complaint of Polish ill treatment of German minorities and Poland's reply.

LA GUARDIA ASKS RUM PARDONS

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—Congress having modified the drastic Jones "five and ten" prohibition law after less than two years' trial, President Hoover will be asked to pardon all persons serving longer sentences than they would receive under the Stobbs modifying act.

Representative F. H. LaGuardia, Republican, of New York, today in a letter to Atty.-Gen. Mitchell asked that a survey be made to determine how many prisons would be benefited by this proposal, and said that upon receipt of the information he would ask the President to pardon the offenders.

Under the Jones act, any prohibition law violator, except for possession, could be sentenced to five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

The Stobbs act, signed by President Hoover last week, provides that sale or transportation of a gallon or less of liquor, unless by an habitual violator, shall be punishable by a fine of not over $200 or imprisonment for not over six months.

Violations under the Jones law became felonies, while the Stobbs act makes the offenses misdemeanors. Stobbs, a Massachusetts Republican, has indorsed LaGuardia's proposal for clemency.

Garrett Trial Slowed Up by Defense Objections

Trust Co. account in the name of Woodside were introduced. The Brookline account in the same name showed total deposits of $28 between February 8 and July 18, 1923, when the balance was drawn out.

A running fire of objections to the bank records by defense counsel, Daniel J. Gallagher and Herbert F. Callahan, and a series of bench conferences, slowed up the progress of the trial.

Judge Patrick M. Keating instructed the jury that it should decide whether signatures on records introduced were those of defendants; he found enough similarity to allow them in evidence, he said.

JUDGE WILL RULE

Whether the bank records admitted over objections of defense counsel shall be considered as evidence against all defendants or not, the court will announce later, the judge said.

Records of a savings account in the name of Florence H. Garrett in the Brookline Trust Co. showed total deposits of $5851.74 in the period from Jan. 7, 1925, to Aug. 1, 1928, and withdrawals of $3527 during the same period. With exception of about $300, all deposits were shown to have been in cash.

Delphine Young, assistant treasurer of the Brookline Bank, produced the signature card of an account made out to Oliver B. Garrett.

BANK MAN ON STAND

Wallace Tibbetts, vice-president of the Exchange Trust Co., who was on the stand when court adjourned Friday, was the first witness.

His interrogation by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle was spotted by constant objections and several bench conferences of varying length.

Wilbur F. Turner, handwriting expert, was expected to take the stand later.

At the opening of the session there appeared to be a chance that the government would conclude its case today, but this chance dwindled before the morning recess with Tibbetts still on the stand.

RULING ON EVIDENCE

A 25-minute bench conference of Judge Keating and all counsel preceded opening of the session.

At its conclusion court instructed the jurors that the testimony given by the stenographer at the Warner hearing with relation to questions and answers of, Miss Hatch was admissible only against Miss Hatch; that evidence relating to occurrences later than Aug. 1, 1928, the last date mentioned in the indictments, was to be stricken from the record and that the testimony of Paul Jewett, treasurer of the Brookline Trust Co., given on Friday, was not to be considered, because he was not a competent witness.

Tibbetts then resumed the stand and after a series of conferences Judge Keating ruled that signature cards and checks should be admitted in evidence, and that where there was doubt whether the defendants, Garrett and Mrs. Garrett, had signed certain papers it would be the duty of the jury to decide.

Over objections, several exhibits, including an order on the Exchange Trust for $368, signed Oliver Garrett and paid to Florence H. Garrett; a $500 withdrawal on the Oliver Garrett account, and a Christmas Club card and duplicate signed Oliver Garrett and an order for $101, payable to Oliver Garrett, were introduced.

TIBBETTS QUIZZED

During cross-examination of Tibbetts by Gallagher, it was brought out that moneys paid for vacation and Christmas clubs accounts had been deposited in the same bank and included in the total of $627.22 shown in a savings account of Florence H. Garrett.

Once when Gallagher inquired regarding accounts introduced, Tibbetts replied:

"There is another account that is not in evidence here."

"Now, as a lawyer, is that a proper answer?" Gallagher asked. "Please understand that when I ask you a question I want an answer that has to do with that question and nothing not included in the question."

If you've caught a severe cold, stay indoors and call your doctor. A cold may develop seriously. In the meantime, take a couple of Darol tablets with a full glass of water and rub your chest and back with Albatum. The Darol will change your system from an acid to an alkaline condition in which germs do not thrive and will allay any fever. The Albatum will relieve congestion in the chest both by local treatment and by the vapors which it releases and which you breathe. Albatum is not only more effective than the ordinary "rub in", but it does not stain the clothing. Darol and Albatum together form a complete and thorough treatment for a cold. Anything less is courting danger. All McKesson Service Druggists and other independent drug stores sell Darol and Albatum. Both are McKesson & Robbins products, which in itself is enough to assure their merit.

COST OF LIVING CUT 3 P. C. IN MONTH

Washington, Jan. 19 (INS)—In the face of the business depression living costs are coming down.

This was indicated today when the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that retail food prices had declined 3 per cent in December from November prices, while the decrease since December a year ago amounted to 13 per cent.

Based on 550 wholesale price quotations weighted according to the importance of each article with prices of 1926 figured as 100, wholesale prices decreased 2¼ per cent during December, making the purchasing price of the 1926 dollar in December $1.276.

Among the 28 food articles decreasing in price during December, oranges topped the list at 20 per cent.

CABBAGE PRICE HIGHER

A one per cent reduction was reported for sirloin and round steak, rib roast, sliced ham, leg of lamb, vegetable lard substitute, rice, canned corn, coffee, raisins and bananas.

The only article of food that increased in price was cabbage, which advanced 9 per cent.

In the wholesale price list farm products, as a group, decreased 5 per cent below the November level, due to lower prices for corn, hogs, eggs, flaxseed, hay, onions, and oranges.

In the textile group there were small decreases among cotton goods and woolen and worsted goods. Silk and rayon, on the contrary, showed a slight advance in price.

BOSTON DROP 3 PER CENT.

Change in retail food prices in various cities showed that in 51 cities there were decreases in December as follows:

Fall River, Indianapolis, Rochester and Seattle, 5 per cent; Bridgeport, Buffalo, Los Angeles, Louisville, Manchester, Memphis, Milwaukee, Newark, New York, Portland (Me.), Portland (Ore.), Providence, San Francisco, and Springfield (Ill.), 4 per cent; Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Dallas, Denver, Little Rock, Minneapolis, Mobile, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Richmond, St. Louis, and Salt Lake City, 3 per cent.

New Air Beacon to Shine for 50 Miles

Corning, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—A new air beacon that shines 5 on a shoestring of power was announced today by the Corning Glass Works. Two beams, each of 2,000,000 candle power, are aimed from a single 1200 candle power incandescent light.

The principle is like standing a candle on a table and setting up on opposite sides two lenses on which magnifies the light of its own side 3700 times.

Daisy Swears She Did Not Steal From Clara Bow

carnivals" just as the avid crowd of spectators believed Miss DeVoe was about to resume her testimony by "telling plenty" about Miss Bow.

Miss Bow was in bed, nursing a severe cold, but her cowboy admirer, Rex Bell, one-time Chicago newsie, was present as her "ambassador."

Miss DeVoe testified in answer to sympathetic questions relating to each of the 25 counts of grand theft.

She said Miss Bow had ordered checks drawn in payment for bills for the house, jewels and other costly things.

The fireworks started over the first question addressed to Miss DeVoe by Defense Attorney Freedman.

JUDGE INTERRUPTS.

Freedman asked Miss DeVoe if it were a fact that after she would spend her own money for Miss Bow, she would then take funds from the Clara Bow special account to reimburse herself.

"Wait just a moment before that question is answered," Judge Doran interrupted.

He then launched into his analysis of the rights of state and defense to inquire into Miss Bow's affairs.

DAISY TELLS HER STORY

Miss DeVoe denied she had tried to "shake down" Clara Bow's attorney, W. I. Gilbert for $125,000.

"On Nov. 1," Miss DeVoe said, "Rex Bell told me to leave and I packed up some clothes, checks, letters and telegrams in a black suitcase and took them to my sister's house. I took the valuable things to the bank.

"I tried every evening until Nov. 6 to get in touch with Miss Bow to return her things."

Miss DeVoe testified these attempts to see Clara were "blocked by Rex Bell."

"Then I went to see Mr. Gilbert.

"He asked me what our trouble was about and I told him Clara for some reason unknown to me had given my job to Rex Bell.

HER FEELINGS HURT

"I told Gilbert if he went to Miss Bow she might grant me an interview as I could return her valuables.

"Gilbert said 'You women up there have an awful time at it, don't you?'

"Then he said to me 'do you intend talking about Miss Bow's personal affairs?'

"I told him my feelings were terribly hurt and that I was not going to make any promises. Gilbert said:

"'Would money keep your mouth shut?'

"I replied to him: 'Mr. Gilbert, $150,000—no, not even $200,000—Would mend my hurt feelings.'"

DIDN'T DEMAND MONEY.

Q—Ev Mr. Freeman—Did you demand money from Mr. Gilbert? A—I did not.

Q—Did you tell Blaney Matthews (district attorney's investigator) you embezzled $35,000 of Miss Bow's money? A—I did not.

Q—Did you admit you appropriated her clothes and other valuable things? A—I did not.

Miss De Voe testified regarding a check for $1262, made out on October 1, 1930, to "Friend Inc.," a Hollywood fur and clothier shop.

She said this check was made out by her at Miss Bow's direction to pay a bill for clothes.

"Can you wear Miss Bow's clothing?" Freedman asked.

"I cannot," Miss De Voe responded. "I am much slenderer than Miss Bow."

CHECK WAS AUTHORIZED

Atty. Freedman then questioned Miss De Voe on the 25 counts of grand theft with which she is charged.

Q—On count one Miss De Voe, a $600 check to Mr. Weinstein. Did Miss Bow authorize you to draw that check? A—Yes, she did.

Q—On count two, the star sapphire ring is mentioned which are said to have purchased. Were you authorized to draw that check for that ring? A—Yes. By Clara.

Q—You are also charged with embezzling money which went to purchase a wrist watch. Will you explain how that happened? A—Well, my mother's birthday was near and Clara asked me what I was going to give her. I said nothing, and she said, "Go and buy her a watch, because I bought my father a watch for his birthday and your mother will feel hurt if you don't give her one."

FOR DIAMOND PIN

Q—There are check stubs also here which designate such money paid for a diamond slip pins and a diamond sports pin. Will you explain those purchases? A—Miss Bow authorized me to make those purchases.

Q—Did you turn the jewelry over to her? A—No; I put it in the safety deposit box for safekeeping because I was not allowed to see her.

3000 VETERANS VOICE DEMAND FOR BONUS

Los Angeles, Jan. 19 (UB)—More than 3000 veterans of the World War gathered in mass meeting at Patriotic Hall here have adopted unanimously a resolution memorializing Congress to pass a bill for immediate cash payment of the full face value of the "bonus."

No voice was raised in opposition, though John E. Staley, chairman, invited full and free discussion.

The hall shook with applause when Joseph Fainor asserted the veterans "will fight again if their country calls."

There were hisses and hoots when Fainor mentioned Secretary Mellon and later the President as opponents of cash payment.

Colonel Herbert R. Fay declared:

"Congress desires to know what the war veterans want. It does not want one man to speak for 7,064,000 of them."

Two-Piece Contrast for Evening

By ANN ARDEN

—American Staff Photo. Model From Frances Waterman.

LONG BEFORE even a whisper of the romantic trend of fashion was heard the Lanvin collection always introduced several evening gowns that made a point of being more dramatic than the straightly uncompromising gowns of the era. These frocks were the famous robe-de-styles. Now with everyone agog over ruffles and femininity, Lanvin creates a frock as modern in feeling as a skyscraper!

IT IS the two-toned dinner gown—a positive sensation. A peplum-blouse in white or pastel shades trimly belted tops a radical departure in skirts, for the black satin skirt is slashed. Slashed at each of its wide pleats to reveal the ankles when you walk! Will this be the forerunner of even more deeply slashed skirts as were the fashion before the war?

NO LIMITATIONS are set upon the two-piece frock. It is as apt to appear on the dance floor as it is in the business office. Even though it isn't always actually in two pieces, the frock simulates the two-piece effect by the acquisition of a peplum, tufts or ruffles. Long skirts and high waistlines give the two-piece frock a logical place in the mode for this method of cutting the long line from belt to hem is a graceful means to smartness.

THE MORAL, if any, pointed by these charming frocks, is that two pieces are often better than one.

* * *

WHETHER YOUR frock is two-piece or not, it should look as though it were. Jaunty little peplums, a ruffle or so, wide tucks, all aid in the deception if the frock is one piece underneath it all.

CHIFFON, THOUGH still a popular fabric, has yielded its place to semi-sheer fabrics such as georgette and crepe Elizabeth. These materials are a little more graceful and lend themselves to draping and the simple lines of the mode a bit more readily than the dainty chiffon. That doesn't mean that chiffon is going into a great decline, however; it means merely that it won't be the only fabric to grace spring afternoons and evenings.

Lewis Deserved Prize, Church Group Decides

New York, Jan. 19 (US)—Sinclair Lewis really deserved the Nobel prize for literature, the congregation of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie decided yesterday.

In a competition waged as if the prize had not yet been awarded, the novelist of Middle Western life won with ease over such strong competitors as Eugene O'Neill, Edwin Arlington Robinson, and Theodore Dreiser. A ballot gave Lewis 58 votes; Robinson, 61; O'Neill, 31, and Dreiser 21.

Monte Carlo Season On

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL

Universal Service special cable

Monte Carlo, Jan. 19.—With bright sunshine, a blue sea and warm weather prevailing, the fashionables are beginning to flock here after spending several weeks winter sporting in Switzerland.

The hotels, the casino and the night clubs are taking advantage of the golden opportunity to arrange gala evenings which are largely attended. At the Hotel de Paris was seen Lady McCarthy, who entertained a party of six, wearing white crepe marocain and her famous diamond necklace. Mr. and Mrs. E. Phillip Oppenheim also had a small gathering of friends, while Donald McPherson, the Chicago scenario writer, had a table for 12.

The cafes, in the evenings, are gay with colorfully clad society folk. At the Cafe de Paris were noted Mrs. C. Matkin of New York in black tulle; Miss Elizabeth Dubose of Jacksonville, Fla., in white satin; Lady Cecil Douglas in a black chiffon gown with a smart cape effect over the shoulders, and Mrs. Thomas Webster, Jr., who wore a stunning dark green crepe de chine ensemble.

Among the men noted were Prince William of Sweden and the Grand Duke Dmitri of Russia, who was with his lovely wife, the former Aubrey Emery. Prince Danilo of Montenegro was at the fashionable night club Knickerbocker.

Sure Way To Make Hands Soft and White

A dandy way to make dry, rough, red or work-stained hands soft, smooth and white is to rub into the hands, after each washing, a few drops of a mixture of sea moss and glycerin. Sea moss is a noted skin-whitener and softener, and glycerin a splendid lubricant. In combination, the two make a remarkable lotion. You can buy this lotion already prepared at any good drug store. It is called Nepto Lotion and costs only 50c a bottle.

Nepto Lotion makes dry, rough or red hands soft, supple and white. It makes "housework" hands look aristocratic. Nepto Lotion may be used on the face or any other part of the body with as great benefit as on the hands. Wherever it is used, it whitens, smoothes and refreshes. It also relieves and prevents chapping, chilblains, sunburn or windburn. Rub a few drops into your skin before going out and it will protect your skin from the withering effects of sun and wind. Nepto Lotion is a naturally good thing for the skin and can do no harm whatever. Contains no grease to clog the pores and catch dirt. Rubs in dry and smooth so you can powder over it. Economical, too, as a little of this unique lotion goes a long way.

New Suits to Give Milady 'Cave-Man Shoulders'

By ADELAIDE KERR

Paris, Jan. 19 (AP) — Broad shoulders, fitted waistlines and skirts 12 inches from the ground are the newest style notes on suits which smart women will wear this spring in what Paris stylists predict will be the greatest tailored suit season for several years.

The collection of one of the most important tailor-dressmakers shown today exhibits suits with pinched waistlines and occasional belts. Today's show is the first of the couturieres' spring openings.

Notched lapels, semi-light sleeves with intricate seamings marked coats which were hip lengths or seven-eighths. There were many long models which featured a placket from hem to hips in the back of the coat, while skirts fitted the hips smoothly with fullness of stitched pleats released below the knee.

Blouses featured men's white silk shirting with tailored collars for outdoor wear and lace-trimmed georgette blouses for dressier suits.

Novelty tweed and dull monotone woolens of fancy weave were favorite materials, while the most popular colors were chocolate brown, gray blue, green and beige.

The collection was varied by occasional models combining light coats with dark skirts.

Swampscott Club Members Take Part in Musical Fantasy

Members of the Swampscott Woman's Club turned thespian today when several of them took part in the "Musical Fantasy," presented by the Club Choral Class in the Town Hall. Mrs. Bernice Clarke, concert chairman, is the author of the fantasy. The scene is laid in the North Shore Garden.

The cast then sang the story of the marriage of the bumble bee and the rose. At the intermission, which preceded the fantasy, Mrs. Joseph Gough presided.

Ups—Downs of Making Muffins

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEX

MUFFINS CERTAINLY seem to be having their ups and downs these snappy days. Sometimes they're so up that they look like young mountains, and sometimes they're so down they almost have the thickness of a waffle. So let's consider today the whys of these all too common catastrophes.

Martha Lee

Firstly, how does a muffin differ from a biscuit or a cake? The main difference in the way the shortening is mixed in. In cake making it is creamed with the sugar; for biscuits it is rubbed into the flour, but in muffins it is melted and beaten in after the other ingredients have been mixed.

First the dry ingredients are sifted, then the milk is added, then an egg unseparated is added, then the melted shortening is beaten in thoroughly. Sugar is often added to improve the flavor and increase food value.

Here's a foundation for plain muffins that will make 8 large or 12 small muffins, which, if your oven is just right, will rise as evenly as the kitchen table top:

PLAIN MUFFINS

2 cups flour
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. sugar
¾ cup milk (cut down to meet increase of melted fat)
1 egg, well beaten
1-3 cup melted shortening

Mix and sift the dry ingredients into a mixing bowl; add the milk gradually, beating until perfectly smooth. Beat the egg without separating, and add to the mixture. Lastly, add melted shortening and mix thoroughly. Fill greased muffin tins half full and bake 20 to 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 deg. F.)

Here are some variations of the plain muffin recipe which you might like to try:

GRAHAM MUFFINS.

1 cup graham or whole wheat flour
¾ cup flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 egg beaten
3 tbsp. melted shortening.

Mix in the order given and bake hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 25 minutes.

RYE MUFFINS.

1 cup rye meal
¾ cup flour
4 tsp. baking powder.
½ cup sugar or corn syrup
1 tsp salt
1 cup milk
1 egg
3 tbsp. melted fat

Mix in order given and bake in hot over (400 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes.

BRAN MUFFINS.

2 cups clean bran
1 cup flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
½ cup molasses
1 cup milk
2 eggs, beaten.
4 tbsp. melted shortening
¾ cup seeded raisins, if desired

Mix in order given, sifting flour, baking powder and salt together. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 25 to 30 minutes.

More on muffins later from

Yours faithfully,

Martha Lee

Household Hints

WHEN MAKING mayonnaise or cooked dressing that is to be kept for several days, add a little gelatine that has been first softened in cold water and dissolved over hot water.

A LITTLE salt rubbed on the cups will take off tea stains.

SILK handkerchiefs and ribbons should be washed in salt and water, and ironed wet, to obtain the best results.

Recipe by Roxbury Woman Wins Weekly Prize

This week's $5 prize goes to Mrs. Rose Silberstein, 28 Farnboro st., Roxbury, for her delicious Kre-Mel Coffee Custard. I am sure many of you are familiar with the variety of tempting dishes that can be made using the popular and economical "five cent dessert powder." When Mr. Budget holds up a warning finger to say that expensive desserts are out of the picture today, you will find that Kre-Mel meets the standards of goodness, healthfulness and economy in every way.

I do hope you will try Mrs. Silberstein's recipe, and if you have developed something original and unusual of your own in the way of inexpensive desserts, I'll be glad to hear from you. The rule governing the $5 prize, as you know, is to embody the use of one or more advertised products in your recipe, and have the recipe practical, original and easy to make.

KRE-MEL COFFEE CUSTARD

3 well beaten eggs (Hood's)
½ package Kre-Mel
Sugar to suit taste
1 can evaporated milk (tall)
½ cup water
1 tsp. Burnett's vanilla

Beat eggs, add Kre-Mel, and beat thoroughly, gradually adding sugar. Blend evaporated milk, coffee, and water well. Mix all together and pour into custard cups or pie pastry and bake until knife comes out clean and dry.

BAKED EGGS AND CHEESE

Break the desired number of eggs in a shallow, greased baking dish, add a few tbsp. of cream and salt, enough to season, and sprinkle with a mixture of grated cheese and fine dry bread crumbs. Set this dish in a pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg.) until the eggs are set and the crumbs are brown. Just before serving, add a few dashes of paprika.

SHIRRED EGGS—SWISS STYLE

These provide a quick luncheon dish. Break two eggs into each of six oiled ramekins or saucers that will withstand heat. Pour over each two tsp. of top milk. Dust with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with two tsp. grated cheese combined with one tsp. dry bread crumbs. Dot with one tsp. butter. Bake in moderate oven for 5 minutes or until eggs are set.

Here's Friend in Need

Are you acquainted with the many friendly food shops which are such a boon to the hurried housewife? The average New England family still prefers beans on Saturday night, but mother need not remain at home all day watching the oven. Shopping, concerts, the matinee, all call to her, and a stop at the neighborhood friendly store will produce a variety of friendly foods that would take hours of work at home to prepare. And best of all, you can't tell the difference from your own delicious home cooking.

Every friendly food shop in 50 different neighborhoods have delicious week-end specials besides the popular beans and brown bread. For instance, on Thursday you may find delicious, dainty apple turnovers for 60 cents a dozen; on Friday golden brown, rich fish cakes ready to heat and serve with tomato sauce for only 30 cents a dozen; then there are home made cakes and candies equal in quality, appearance and delightfulness of taste to your very own at their best. And on Saturday night—remember—world beating beans and brown bread.

If you haven't located the friendly food shop in your neighborhood, I'll be glad to tell you about it if you'll drop me a line.

The Top o' the Morning

The right start in the morning tones you up for the whole day. Start the day off right. Begin breakfast with a large, juicy grapefruit, filled with flavor and the well-known "Vitamin C" so necessary to health.

The innocent and well meaning grapefruit has been the subject of the joke-smith's efforts overlong. Anyone knows that a grapefruit properly cut away from the skin and membrane will not present difficulties to the eater, or danger to his eyes!

No matter how you eat them, by spoon from the skin, or the juice squeezed out as you would that of an orange or in a cocktail, the health-giving properties are there, all hidden in the bitter-sweet liquid so different from any other drink in the world.

Grapefruit is always good, and always good for you. They are, reasonable in price, but extravagant in goodness. Why not order a week's supply today and—the top o' the morning to you!

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

A LITTLE BIT ON THE LATE JOHNNY DUNN'S BOY, DICK

HE'S RED-HEADED, blue-eyed and one look at those thin, straight lips and the square set of his jaw shows you that he is fighting Irish. He's a protege of Tex Rickard, is Dick Dunn, new general manager of the Boston Garden, and a chip of the old block. His father, the late Johnny Dunn, was the Tex Rickard of his era, and for more than a quarter of a century was a prominent figure in all sports doings in New York.

Johnny Dunn — John Parnell Dunn, Irish and proud of it—promoted sports events in New York in the rough and ready days when sport had the bark on. It was a poor sporting event in which Johnny did not act as master of ceremonies. When Johnny Dunn was not acting as master of ceremonies at boxing, wrestling, bicycling, footracing events he promoted himself he was in the spotlight introducing with a flowery outburst of oratory the principals in big sporting events promoted by somebody else.

Dick Dunn's old man was a one-man show. We have seen him act as referee, announcer, timer, all on the one and same bill. As a master of ceremonies Johnny Dunn was in a class by himself. He had a Celtic gift of gab and wit which enabled him to embellish the flows of oratory the sports patrons of those days demanded. As a spieler Johnny had a Coney Island barker backed off the boards.

We can still see him striding pompously to ring center and with majestic mein raising his hand to command silence. When John Parnell Dunn raised his hand even the gallery gods became as silent as the Sphinx.

And when John Parnell Dunn lashed out in a flow of oratory William Jennings Bryan had to take a back seat. He could endow a pair of ham and bean boxers with more titles and with more heroic and superhuman qualities than ever were dreamed of in heaven or earth.

HOW JIM BAGLEY SQUARED JOE McGINN

WE'LL NEVER forget one trip to a private fight we once made with Johnny Dunn, the late Joe McGinn of the Associated Press and the late Jim Bagley. Jim Bagley was the first great master of slang. He was a better and greater writer of slang than George Ade, but lacked Ade's vision and foresight in commercializing it.

We took a train to a Jerkwater station. It was raining cats and dogs. Bagley and McGinn both had dined not too wisely, but too well. Both were considerably spifficated. As we wandered through the rain and the mud McGinn was bemoaning what a dressing down he was going to get from the good woman when he got home.

"Never mind, Joe," consoled Bagley. "Don't you go home till tomorrow afternoon. I'm going to write a sad story about the trials and tribulations of us poor sports writers, and when your wife sees my story in the Evening Mail, she'll weep and forgive you for getting pickled."

Johnny Dunn, McGinn, Bagley and your correspondent, then a cub reporter, plodded al ng in the rain and the mud and finally saw a slab of light. It was a crack in a barn. Looking through it we saw the ring and the combatants stripped for action.

The next day we picked up the paper to see how Jim Bagley had "squared" Joe McGinn.

MATMEN HARDEN MUSCLES BY OUTDOOR WORKOUTS

ED GEORGE — LEE WYKOFF — FARMER GEORGE McLEOD

FIT FOR THE FRAY are the above three wrestlers after toiling at hard labor and spending much time in the outdoors. Wykoff, shown in center, wrestles Gus Sonnenberg at the Arena on Thursday night. Farmer George McLeod, on the right, meets Pat McGill on the same card. George is not on the program, but has been working out at Paul Bowser's farm in Lexington. Ed George is the present champion, having pinned Sonnenberg.

Sonnenberg in Mat Fray With Wykoff on Thursday

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will furnish the high spot for Boston sport fans this week when he clashes with Lee Wykoff, former University of St. Louis star, at the Arena on Thursday night under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Sonnenberg comes here from the Pacific Coast where he enjoyed a long layoff following his defeat at the hands of Ed George.

Gus' desire to help the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American was one of the reasons why he lost his title. He left a hospital in Albany to come to Boston to wrestle Jack Sherry for the Basket Fund. He was suffering from a severe cold at the time.

The effort of wrestling Sherry caused Sonny's condition to become worse. He collapsed at the Copley-Plaza Hotel the day after the match. He was later removed to a hospital in Providence.

The George bout on the coast had been booked before Sonny became ill. He left a sick bed to go to the coast. It was to be expected that in his weakened condition that Sonny should be conquered by George.

The former Dartmouth star took a vacation on the coast following his meeting with George. The rest enabled him to win back his lost vitality. Gus says he is in better condition now than he has been for a long time.

It is expected that a large crowd will be at the Arena on Thursday night to see if Sonny can upset the colorful Wykoff. The latter has been a consistent winner in local rings. Keen judges of wrestling rate him as one of the most promising of the younger crop of mat artists.

Everett Marshall, Pacific Coast wrestler who made such an impressive showing in his victory bout with Pat McGill, will have Joe "Bull" Komar as an opponent in another tussle.

Marshall has beaten Strangler Lewis and Joe Stecher. He started in wrestling and football at the University of Denver and University of Iowa. He is gunning for

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

One of the complications that frequently arises when you straighten your back swing concerns your right knee, which may get into the habit of breaking downward, or forward, whichever way it strikes you. When your right leg begins to absorb the pressure thrown against it by the swinging action, your right leg is called upon necessarily to maintain the position it has while other parts of your body are in motion. This is much like the puzzle of childhood days of patting the stomach with one hand while describing a circle with the other, only to have both hands begin to pat or both begin describing circles.

Boston Hockey Club Needs Money for European Trip

Unless friends of amateur hockey come to the rescue, the proposed trip of the Boston Hockey Club to the world's championship amateur hockey matches in Poland must be cancelled.

Only $1250 of the necessary $2500 is on hand and the additional $1250 must be raised before midnight. Manager Walter A. Brown of the hockey club hopes to get together the necessary sum today, in order that the Boston team may make the important trip.

The Boston Hockey club was selected by the A. A. U. as the U. S representative for the world's title matches, slated for Krynica, Poland, next month. The task of raising the necessary funds began at once but only half the sum needed was on hand early today.

At the present moment, the club treasury shows a balance of $1250. Manager Brown has appointments with notables who may aid in the financing of the trip.

So far, the club has secured $500 from the N. E. A. A. U., $500 from C. F. Adams, owner of the Bruins, and $250 from President George V. Brown of the Tigers.

If the money is forthcoming today, the club will sail from New York on the Bremen, Wednesday. Reservations have been made, the uniforms for the team—dark blue with American shields—have been ordered by the A. A. U., and passport matters have been settled.

Twelve men and Manager Brown will compose the squad.

The B. H. C. is one of the youngest clubs of its kind, having been started only last winter. The club, however, defeated the University Club. The moving spirit in the trip to Europe has been Walter Brown, a former Boston Latin and Exeter player, who is the son of George V. Brown, present president of the Tigers and long associated with amateur and professional hockey in Boston.

BLACKHAWKS, CONTENDERS FOR STANLEY CUP, THREATEN LEAD OF BOSTON BRUINS

By BILL GRIMES

As only Philadelphia and Ottawa eliminated themselves during the first half of the battle for National Hockey League honors, eight clubs are contesting for the six playoff positions as the race swings into the final dash to the wire.

During the past week, the Chicago Blackhawks picked up on the Bruins until they are right on the heels of the Rossmen. Although the Hawks went down to defeat before the Bruins at the Garden two weeks ago, they hit a championship stride after leaving here and then came through with four consecutive shutouts, numbering the Quakers, Americans, Rangers and Bruins as their victims.

Bill Grimes

As the Hawks are a fine road club and do not get the worst of the officiating at home, they are serious contenders for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world's championship. The American Hockey League which is, in some quarters, recognized as an outlaw organization, is struggling to secure a sound foothold in Chicago. A Stanley Cup victory by the Hawks would cramp the progress of the outlaws.

Since Cecil Dillon, Sam McAdam and Joe Jerwa were taken on by the New York Rangers, Lester Patrick's chances of remaining up in the race have greatly improved. Ernie Kenney, who was reckoned on to tighten the Ranger defense, has failed to impress, falling down against the Bruins and Maple Leafs due in a large measure to a lack of knowledge of his opponents.

Although the Detroit Falcons are making a serious threat to replace the Rangers, Manager Jack Adams' crowd does not appear to have the reserve punch necessary to accomplish this feat. Time and again this season they have passed up opportunities to pick up ground on the Rangers and unless they display unexpected strength from now on, they seem destined to again finish just outside the money.

Race Is Close in Canadian Division

In the Canadian division, the race is close with Les Canadiens, Maroons and Toronto holding a slight edge over Les Americans. Only one game separates the three leading clubs in the International section.

Due to their tendency towards displaying signs of being an in and out club, some concern is being expressed over the destiny of the Maroons. Unquestionably, the Maroons are a great club. They are practically an all-star aggregation.

Possibly, their trouble is due to the presence of too many stars and not enough serious workmen. At any rate, the upsets by the Canadiens have lost them a great deal of their former prestige among the Montreal fans, who never fail to flock, and quickly, to a winner.

The Bruins are down for three games this week, starting with the Ottawa Senators tomorrow night at the Garden and winding up in Philadelphia on Saturday, after they have tilted with the Americans in New York, on Thursday.

For three weeks, the Bruins have been very much on the go, and under the circumstances they have done remarkably well to remain in the pace making berth.

They are confident that they will annex six more points this week, which will give the Chicago Blackhawks something to mull over.

Red Sox Infield Is Weak Part of Club, Says Manager

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

PUNCH AT BAT IS NEEDED FOR TEAM

By JOE CASHMAN

Judging from their showing last year, there is plenty wrong with our Red Sox, but Manager John "Shono" Collins doesn't think so.

After studying this year's roster most thoroughly for several weeks at his home up in the Berkshires, "Shono" dropped down to town over the week-end to tell us what he had discovered about his club, and his report, to put it mildly, was most favorable.

In his opinion, all he needs to find among the 40-odd athletes he will take down to Pensacola next month is two fair-hitting infielders to lead the team out of the cellar, a feat which has defied the efforts of such smart baseball men as Lee Fohl, Bill Carrigan and Heinie Wagner during the past six years.

But, let "Shono" tell it.

"All that is wrong with the Sox, as far as I can see," says the new pilot, "is the infield. The pitching staff was one of the best in the circuit last year and the acquisition of veterans like Wiley Moore and Jim Brillheart and youngsters like Walter Murphy and Bob Kline should make it even stronger this coming season.

"Our catching was as good as the average in 1930 and should be better in the next campaign as a result of the purchase of 'Muddy' Ruel.

"The regular outfield at the close of last season which consisted of Earl Webb, Tom Oliver and Russ Scarritt satisfies me in every respect, yet I wouldn't be a bit surprised if one or more of these gardeners should be beaten out of a regular job.

Rookies of Ability on Sox Roster

"I know that Al VanCamp is a good outfielder and Coach Rudy Hulswitt swears by Clifford McSwain, Mobile rookie. Then there are Gene Rye, Texas League slugger; John 'Buster' Lucas and Jack Winsett, all most promising outfield candidates.

"The infield, I admit, worries me somewhat. It fielded well enough last season but was badly lacking in hitting strength. I must insert some punch into the quartet to get anywhere.

"I think Jack Rothrock can play third base. He showed a lot of ability at the hot corner before he was shifted to the outfield and I am going to move him right back to the spot again.

"If he can field the position, my third base worries will be over, as he is a natural .300 hitter who hits either way and is one of the fastest men in the game.

"I hear very nice reports about Al Marquardt, Nashville infielder. He hit .294 last year and played well at second, third and short. If he hits as well for us, he should be the regular shortstop, unless either Rhyne or Wasilewski, two fine fielders, improves at the bat.

"Bobby Reeves will be given every chance to make good at second base. I know that he can field well enough to hold down the bag, and since he hit over .300 during one season at Washington, he ought to be able to do it again. Only players who have never hit better than .275 are hopeless.

"Then, I have Otis Miller, who is a fine hitter and a better fielder than he appeared to be last season, when he was bothered with neuralgia from the start to the finish. He will prove an ideal utility man if he doesn't become a regular, as he can play any of the infield positions."

First Base Offers Manager No Worries

Sweeney has always hit over .300 and there is no reason to believe that he won't again this season, and Phil Todt hits the ball as hard and far as anybody on the team, even if he isn't consistent. I have no first base worries.

"When the season starts, our infield may not be any stronger than it was a year back, but the outlook to me is very bright right now, and I am confident that I will field a very much improved inner quartet in the opening game next April."

Though the Sox have had several more than the 40 players that they are allowed to put on the roster for several weeks, they are still adding to the list.

President Bob Quinn announced that Andy Mullaney, a young right-handed pitcher from Boston College and "Lefty" Cronin, a former Jamaica Plain high southpaw, would make the trip South and Collins chirped that he would bring down a high school catcher from Pittsfield by the name of Howard Storie.

COLLINS LEADS INTERNATIONAL

New York, Jan. 19 (INS)—Jimmy Collins, Rochester first baseman now with the St. Louis Cardinals, won the 1930 batting championship of the International League with a mark of .376, according to official records released today. Collins made the greatest number of hits, 234, most triples, 19, and set a new league record by batting in 130 runs.

Joe Hauser, Baltimore, established a world's record by hitting 63 home runs and set three league marks by scoring 173 runs, hitting for 443 total bases and striking out 117 times.

Honkey Haines, Montreal, led in stolen bases with 65, and Al Moore, Buffalo, made the most one-base hits, 135. George Toporcer of Rochester, now manager of Jersey City, made the most two-base hits, 49. Buffalo won team batting honors with a mark of .314.

Sport Fans Get Big News First in the American

The Boston Evening American continues to print the big sports news first.

Last Monday this newspaper announced the signing of Max Schmeling and Young Stribling for a bout in Chicago in June, and the additional fact that Primo Carnera was to meet the winner in September. Two days later other newspapers published this information.

On Tuesday, the Boston Evening American announced that Dick Dunn of Cleveland had been appointed General Manager of the Boston Garden. This story was officially confirmed the following day.

On Wednesday, the Boston Evening American gave exclusive information of the signing of Jim Maloney and Primo Carnera for a bout at Miami, Fla., in February. This story was confirmed on Saturday.

If you want the big sports news first, accurate in every detail, read the Boston Evening American.

SALEM FIGHTS POSTPONED

The feature bout between Horatio Vaiha, of Gloucester and Patsy Santos of Revere at Salem Rink tonight, has been postponed till tomorrow night. The remainder of the card will remain the same.

Schaaf Ridicules the Claim of Dick Daniels

Ernie Schaaf ridicules the claim of Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight, that he will be a victim of a knockout when these rivals clash at the Boston Arena a week from tonight, under the direction of the Argonne A. A.

For ever since Daniels first invaded the Hub, he has been regarded as the most tremendous puncher since the reign of Jack Dempsey, and his knockdowns scored against Johnny Risko and Al Friedman impressed Hub fans so keenly that they are now anticipating Schaaf on the floor

Football Players Satisfied With Game as Now Played

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 19 (INS)—Football players in outstanding eastern colleges were satisfied with the condition of the sport as played today, according to the results of a questionnaire sent out to Colgate, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, N. Y. U., Princeton, Yale, and Williams, by the editors of The Dartmouth, student daily paper of the college.

Questionnaires were sent to 150 varsity players at these colleges and 114 answers were received. Dartmouth and Williams players were most dissatisfied with the game, while Princeton and N. Y. U. men came out strongly against the part of professional coaches in the running of football teams.

Shorter schedules were thought best by the players in general, while there was considerable objection to early spring practice and post-season games.

Dartmouth, Williams and Princeton, men were the principal faultfinders of "sets-ups" for the team, with Dartmouth players heading the list.

In regard to professional coaching a Princeton player remarked: "As a rule the success of the coach depends on that of the team, and he is inclined to become a slave driver at times. Were the players to have more say, football would then become a game instead of a duty."

It was felt, however, by the players in general that a certain amount of professional coaching was necessary for a team.

telling of the trip through the cold the rain and the mud. For half a column Jim went on describing the hardships of the scribes without mentioning any names or anything. Then he wrote:

"All of a sudden out of the rain and gloom and darkness loomed up a building. It was all lit up like Joe McGinn."

That's the way Jim Bagley," squared" Joe McGinn.

"LEAVE IT TO DUNN" WAS RICKARD'S SLOGAN

DICK DUNN, the new Garden pilot, got his early training working for his father in various sports enterprises. His father died and Dick was cast out on his own. He secured a menial position in the old Madison Garden. There the red-headed, blue-eyed Irish lad caught the eye of Tex Rickard.

The great Rickard, always a good picker of men, advanced young Dunn in leaps and bounds. It soon became a habit of Rickard's to "leave it to Dunn."

When the Madison Square Garden Corp. built the Detroit Arena things went bad at the start. So they left it to Dunn.

Dick went out to Detroit and in three months' time put the Detroit Arena on a paying basis.

And now with things not going so well with the Boston Garden they have, rushed Old Doctor Dunn in to see what he can do with the patient.

Dick Dunn is snooping around in his usual quiet, tight-lipped way. He isn't saying much, but is sawing wood.

If there is any man who can put the Boston Garden on a paying basis it is Dick Dunn. Johnny Dunn's boy knows sport from cellar to garret, knows what the public wants, how to get it and give it to them.

Bigger than that, we believe we told you that this red-headed, blue-eyed, tight-lipped, square-jawed executive is fighting Irish.

The fighting Irish don't know when they're licked.

matches with Sonnenberg and George.

Another match will find Farmer George McLeod pitted against Pat McGill of Wakefield.

Bill Demetral of Chicago and Abe Kaplan of New York will collide in another contest.

Jim Maloney and Primo Carnera will collide in a 15-round bout at Miami on March 5 under the direction of Frank Bruen, former general manager of the New York Garden.

When these men battled at the Boston Garden last November Maloney furnished one of the big upsets of the boxing game when he won the decision. It was the only verdict Carnera lost during his American invasion.

Maloney's bout with Johnny Risko, originally billed for the Boston Garden for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed.

The Roberto Roberti-Jose Santa, carded for tonight by the Argonne Club, is also out.

All of which ends the so-called boxing war.

The next pro boxing show in Boston will take place on next Monday night when Ernie Schaaf clashes with Dick Daniels, under the direction of the Argonne A. A. at the Arena.

Daniels recently won a close decision over Al Friedman and feels confident he can also upset Schaaf. The latter will tackle Jimmy Braddock in the New York Garden on Friday night.

Paul Cavelier, a stable mate of Schaaf's, will take on Larry Johnson of Chicago in the 10-round semifinal at the Garden.

"You Will Benefit Public Health"

DR. J. F. X. STACK
216 GARDEN STREET
HOBOKEN, N. J.

June 17, 1930.

American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

I have seen your advertising displays in the newspapers and on billboards, telling people about the harm spitting may cause and the dangers lurking in cigars when the tips are sealed with spit. Your efforts to teach the public and thus prevent suffering will do more than sell cigars. You will benefit public health, and for that reason I want to give my enthusiastic approval to your campaign.

As a health commissioner, I am interested in seeing information of this sort brought home to everybody. Human ills would be greatly lessened if every person knew what danger there is in spitting in public places and in using the tongue to seal or moisten anything in manufacturing. Your campaign is indeed a "Crusade of Decency" and my department wishes you success in your efforts.

You are welcome to use this letter in your plan of public education, if you wish, with the understanding that I am not publicly endorsing your product in preference to any other, but that I am heartily in favor of your campaign to better your industry by making it cleaner.

Very truly yours,
J. F. X. Stack M.D.
Health Commissioner,
City of Hoboken, N.J.

. . . one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Stack's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Stack writes: "I am heartily in favor of your campaign to better your industry by making it cleaner."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it... Smoke Certified Cremo — a really wonderful smoke — mild — mellow — nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

Bernie McCafferty to Run in Prout 440 at K. of C. Games

CRUSADER TO RACE BLAKE AT GARDEN

By BILL CONNELL

Bernie McCafferty, great quarter miler of the Holy Cross track forces, will go after his third victory in the Prout quarter mile, feature of the annual William C. Prout Memorial track games at the Boston Garden January 31.

The entry of the Crusader flash, who has been one of the best distance sprint performers in the country for the past three years, makes one of the finest indoor quarter-mile fields the indoor season could offer.

Bill Connell

Eddie Blake of the Boston Athletic Association, who defeated McCafferty in the opening meet of this indoor campaign, the Brooklyn Connell, K. of C. games will be one of the selected field in the quarter-mile race.

In that first important race of the season in New York a couple of weeks back, McCafferty was one of the pre-run favorites. He was pushed and thrown off his stride at the initial corner though, and never had a chance to make up the distance after that on the unbanked Gotham armory track.

The Garden oval is fast and both McCafferty and Blake are accustomed to the track. Which will mean that the winner should hurl through the tape in close to record time.

It has not been decided yet who the other runners in the 440 will be. Track fans have been hoping that Donald Fleet, Jack Ryder's sophomore 440 ace at Boston College, would be entered in the race.

Coach Ryder, however, declared that he has no intention of forcing Fleet, who is only a youngster, and so Donald will confine his efforts in the Prout games to a leg of the Boston College varsity one mile relay.

With McCafferty and Blake running the quarter, however, a fine race is assured. Both Blake and McCafferty are great competitors, are now in the best of shape, and each is anxious to grab the lion's share in the race.

Few Newcomers for Cubs This Season

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 19—Rogers Hornsby will have his troubles next spring, but they won't be new faces. When he gets everybody into the Catalina Island camp there will be only 11 additions to last season's roster and the manager already has a pretty good idea of just what most of them are worth. He has seen them before. Four of them have made previous Cub training jaunts. A fifth was once a Cub, but only on paper.

Wilson Demanding $40,000 Contract

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—Having read of Babe Ruth's reported salary of $80,000 a year, Hack Wilson has decided that he should be worth at least half that much.

President William Veeck of the Cubs is vacationing at Catalina Island, Cal., the training site of the Cubs, but is expected back soon for a personal conference with Wilson.

DAMON RUNYON • Says •

New York, Jan. 19 (US)—I hope and trust, as Mr. Josephus Humphreys the silv'ry tonsiled lark would say, that the rumor of a reconciliation between Princeton and Harvard has some foundation in fact.

These young fellows got mad at each other some semesters back over some such trivial matter as an exchange of insults, and the quarrel has taken a lot of joy out of athletic life, one way and another. It used to afford me great pleasure to see those boys smacking one another about in the cool of an autumn evening 'neath the embattled goal posts at the close of a bitterly contested Princeton-Harvard game.

I note that Yale is somewhat interested in seeing the lads get together. At least the Yale Daily News sticks in its ear to the extent of suggesting that Harvard and Princeton ought to inter the old kindling splinterer, or something to that effect, and I can well understand Yale's interest.

The way matters stand now when the fall time smacking sets in, Yale is caught in the middle. I do not mean the Yale football team.

I refer to the Yale undergraduates, the jolly defenders of Yale's goal posts. All the football team has to do is play football. It does not have to get out there in the thick of the smacking.

FANS HAVE HARD TIME

When the football players are reclining at their ease in the dressing room, listening to the soothing voice of their coach, and enjoying the comfort of hot poultices and liniments, it is the undergraduates who are enduring the real hardships of football as they earnestly strive on a frozen field to keep the opposing vandals from plucking their posts limb for tree.

And I claim that the way the Yale schedule is now made up, the New Haven undergraduates have too much work. They do not get what we call a square rattle.

You see, they first have to withstand the smacking of the noble Princetonians. Then before the Yalensians have time to fully recover their breath, the Harvardians are upon them.

In the good old days the thing worked perfectly. All hands would get into the melee under the goal posts properly trained, and in the pink of condition. No one had too much or too little preparation.

YALE IN BAD SPOT

But now Yale gets smacked both ways from the jack, and it is no wonder that the New Haven boys long for the good old days when they had a little recess between smackings.

Just why it wasn't Harvard that lost the prestige instead of Princeton, and just why it wasn't the Army that lost the prestige instead of the Navy is not clear to me, but it is none the less a fact.

In all this land there was never a football combination that had the color of the old Big Three, or of the Army-Navy game. This color was produced by natural rivalry. There is no natural rivalry, as the football bug sees it, between Princeton and any teams other than Harvard and Yale.

The greatest natural football rivalry of all, of course, is the rivalry between Yale and Harvard, which endures against very bad football teams.

Still, there was always plenty of natural football rivalry between Harvard and Princeton, because the Harvardians were disposed to maintain a most superior attitude toward Princeton, and the Princetonians just loved to lay those proud guys low.

There was more fun and excitement on the eve of a Princeton-Harvard game than attended any other meeting. And the undergraduate smacking was always perfectly lovely, even though it lacked the heartfelt ferocity that goes into a Yale-Princeton or a Harvard-Yale smacking. Maybe it was because those Yale boys are the most earnest smackers of them all.

In any event, I agree with the Yale Daily News that the lads ought to get together, so that we can get our smacking back on a common sense basis.

15 Exhibition Ball Games for Cards

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19—Fifteen games with major league clubs, including four with their World Series rivals, the Athletics, are on the spring exhibition schedule of the Cardinals, announced by Secretary Clarence Lloyd.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

Thatcher Colt Warns Betty Not to Conceal Facts About Dr. Maskell

THATCHER COLT, with Betty's help, went through letters and papers left behind when Geraldine Foster departed

How the Story Started

Geraldine Foster, a very attractive young reception clerk in the Washington sq. office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell, "Laughing Doctor," vanished from her Morningside Heights apartment in The Esplanade on the night before Christmas. Her room mate Betty Canfield, reported her disappearance to police three days after Christmas and appealed directly to Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt for aid. He starts the police on the trail and goes himself to the apartment to search and question Betty.

Now Go On With Story.

Colt Probes Deep

CHAPTER 3

RETURNING to the living room, after roaming from front to back, Thatcher Colt sat down on the edge of the couch and, leaning on his walking stick, shook his head and stared around him with thoughtful eyes as if seeking the truth about Geraldine Foster through clairvoyance.

Then he began to question Betty Canfield. "Once more I admired the quiet and adroit method which he employed with such consummate skill; he was leading this girl to talk about her friend confidingly, so that she was almost unaware that she was being interrogated by a master of inquisition, dreaded throughout the underworld.

For half an hour they chatted on, and at the close Thatcher Colt said:

"I think I have what I want now, Betty — a psychological portrait of Geraldine Foster. A reception clerk in a doctor's office, and why? Because she wanted to be in the big city, instead of in the little town where her parents lived. An ambitious girl who was taking night courses in Columbia University. A good-natured creature—you roomed with her for three years and never had a serious disagreement."

Geraldine Loyal

"That's true," said Betty.

"Loyal to the man she intended to marry," resumed Thatcher Colt, checking off the points of characterization he had drawn forth by his questions.

"Sends 1 of the presents home to the family every week, although her salary is small and her father is worth perhaps fifty thousand dollars. A girl who is kind to her mother, father, brother. Within three days of her marriage, and proof! She disappears, after that curious conversation you had with her over the telephone."

"Oh, there must be some way of tracing her," exclaimed Betty, with a gesture of her lovely eyes. "Easy does it, Betty. I've only just started—and I want to go right on. Mind? Now, this afternoon you referred to your friend's employer, Doctor Humphrey Maskell."

Refilled Pipe

"They [illegible]m 'the laughing doctor of Washington Square,' said Betty, with a toss of her head.

"Who calls him that?"

"His patients and his friends, Geraldine told me."

Thatcher Colt was refilling his pipe.

"Do you think Dr. Maskell has any idea where Geraldine is?" he asked amiably.

"She was quarreling with him before I called up. And I wouldn't put anything past him. I think I told you his own family won't speak to him."

"Sometimes that is a compliment," Thatcher Colt said, "but not in this instance. There was not a better trial lawyer in New York city than George Maskell. The father is a retired architect, designed the Tabulature Building and three or four others—made millions. Why, Betty, it's a very fine family."

"All fine families have their dark section," declared Betty. "Often Geraldine had sat in that very chair you occupy now and told me about Dr. Maskell and his family. His own brother, George, the lawyer, has not visited him in 20 long years. I think that the doctor did sometimes see his father, but not often.

"There was a very strange situation in that family. I think Geraldine always had the suspicion that the doctor was a little mad. He was given to unexpected and unexplained absences, and had a mad passion for chopping down trees—he laughs about it and says he is imitating the exiled Kaiser in Doorn, and that he loves the swing of the axe."

"But you still haven't told me why the family doesn't like Doctor Maskell," urged Thatcher Colt.

"I don't know—but I do know that I have always found the personality of the man repelling, and I warned Geraldine to leave him long ago. I believe he could tell us at out Geraldine this minute if he chose."

Just a Hunch

"But that's just a hunch?"

"Of course."

"Maybe it is the doctor who won't have anything to do with the rest of the family—the boot may be on the other foot," suggested Colt. "Anyway, there's nothing so far to confirm your hunch, Betty, or to connect Doctor Maskell with the matter in any way—actually?"

She admitted there was not and he sat back thoughtfully.

"Betty," he remarked, "I have the hopeless feeling that you are not being entirely frank with me about Doctor Maskell."

She flushed slightly.

"I am trying to tell you everything All that I know is what Geraldine told me. She was very anxious about him. She always said he wasn't as wild as he liked to make out. But she found out last spring that detectives were following the doctor and she always believed his family had employed them."

"George Maskell, you mean?"

"Or Mrs. George, the gorgeous Portia, who made such a hit in the Wolken bad check case. Or even the doctor's father. They are all of them, in spite of their political liberalism, frightened to death that the doctor will do something to disgrace them. He is a fighter when he drinks, you know—but he has been a total abstainer now for several years."

Thatcher Colt smiled with a kind of mild amusement

"How much our employes know about our private affairs," he remarked.

RAIL CHIEFS TO DISCUSS N.E. MERGER

Van Sweringens Among Those Invited to Meeting in Providence

New England railroad chiefs will meet in Providence Feb. 3 in the first concerted move toward a settlement of transportation problems that has been watched with interest by the country.

The Providence Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the meeting and banquet, sent out invitations to various rail chief including the Van Sweringen interests of Ohio, in anticipation of a report from the New England Governors' railroad committee in favor of a merger of the Boston & Maine and New Haven systems into an all New England system.

The invitation to the Van Sweringen interests brought reports that the two young railroad men were seeking control of New England rails and had bought the Palmer to Providence right of way of the unfinished Southern New England railroad, now held by the Providence Chamber of Commerce

John J. Bernet, president of the Ohio & Chesepeake railroad and William H. Bowd, personal counsel for O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, both denied any such transaction as did officials of the Providence holders.

R. B. Watrous, secretary of the chamber, announced the meeting had been called to discuss the railroad and transportation situation in New England and its relation with the Chesapeake & Ohio system

The entrance of the Van Sweringens into New England problems was seen as a move by the mid-West magnates to combat the Pennsylvania railroad that credited with hold on the B. & M. and New Haven systems

The so-called Providence plan provides for allocation of the New England roads among several trunk lines in the interests of uniform rates and better service in opposition to what they claim would be the passing of New England railroads into the control of the Pennsylvania road with no New England control.

Also her doll carriage was demolished.

The accident came when the automobiles operated by Joseph H. Breen of Fellsway, Medford, and Edward A. Weston of Shirley collided at Broadway and D. st., the Breen machine being forced up on the sidewalk.

Creation of a joint board composed of one member each of the Metropolitan District Commission, Department of Public Works and the Metropolitan Planning Division to develop Revere Beach as a health and recreational center was urged at a hearing before the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs today by former Representative Michael F. Shaw and G. F. Holland, both of Revere.

At the outset of the hearing, Shaw stressed that the beach is used by people from every part of the state and should be treated as a state project.

Under plans prepared by Holland, the present three mile beach front would be extended out to a distance of 1200 feet thereby increasing the acreage from 64 to 250 acres to 500.

A retaining wall would be constructed and the fill taken by hydraulic pumps from Broad sound. Features of the new beach development would be parking spaces to accommodate 15,000 automobiles, a 20-foot promenade and an anchorage basin for yacht and seaplane use.

WET SNOW TIES UP TRAFFIC

Swirling, sticky snow raised havoc with transportation on the highways and along the shore today. The flakes descended in a blinding mass.

Harbor craft moved slowly and vessels off the coast received storm warnings of a disturbance moving northeastward and gathering intensity, with easterly gales threatening trouble.

The forenoon trip of the Colonial passenger plane to New York was canceled.

The early snowfall made motor travel dangerous, lining the roads with a slippery coating, which was later coated with a treacherous blanket of white. In congested districts the visibility was so low that cars had to creep along.

The weatherman predicted the snow was likely to change to rain by night and clearing is due during the night, with the wind shifting to northwest and bringing lower temperatures.

The disturbance was central near the Delaware Breakwater, according to government warnings to shipping, and was moving swiftly up the coast, while another storm was moving in a general easterly direction from Michigan, probably due to strike only the northern New England coast.

ELY'S PLAN FOR JOBLESS AID ATTACKED

Lifting of Borrowing Restrictions for Cities and Towns Is Opposed at Hearing

The waiving of restrictions on the borrowing of money by cities and towns for public works, as advocated by Gov. Joseph B. Ely in his inaugural address, was opposed today during a hearing before the joint legislative committee on municipal finance by R. A. Cutter, representing the Boston Real Estate Exchange and Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards.

Alexander Whiteside, representing Massachusetts Tax Association, who had previously spoken in opposition to a somewhat similar recommendation, said he thought the Governor's proposal should be carefully considered before being put into effect.

ASHLEY BILL OPPOSED

Both Cutter and Whiteside opposed the bill of Mayor Charles S. Ashley to waive the provisions of the present law for one year, whereby 25 cents of every $1000 borrowed by cities and towns, within the debt limit, is added to the tax levy.

"I want to sound a warning note," said Atty. Whiteside. "The cost of municipal government during the last ten years has risen tremendously. We are convinced that cities have spent more than they could afford. We are not saying they were extravagant. Expenditures should be so carefully made that a mortgage will not be put upon the future."

When the Governor's address was considered today by the committee, Atty Whiteside said.

"My attitude is the same on this matter as on Mayor Ashley's bill. I believe it should be very carefully considered."

During his opposition to both the governor's recommendation and Mayor Ashley's bill, Atty. Cutter said he believed that the unemployment situation could be cared for by adding a 2 cent tax on gasoline and he also favored a state tax on tobacco or cigarettes.

MAYORS FAVOR BILL

Among those who favored Mayor Ashley's bill were Mayors Manning, of Lynn; Dillon, of Holyoke; Larkin of Medford; Russell, of Cambridge; Murphy, of Somerville; Whalen, of Chelsea; O'Neil, of Everett; Peterson, of Woburn, and Robert A. Wharton, representing Massachusetts Federation of Labor. The last mentioned also favored Governor Ely's recommendations.

Mayor Ashley said "New Bedford, the same as all textile cities, has been struck by a cyclone. I don't want to see the law changed on pay as we go but we want temporary relief this year."

Mayor Seeks Action on Land Transfer

The Boston school committee was today requested by Mayor Curley to take early action on plans to transfer property now controlled by that body in Dunbar ave., Dorchester, to the park department in order that work may be begun at once on construction of a playground there. The mayor said that he is desirous that there be no further delay on the matter because he was anxious to provide employment for a number of jobless.

CROWLEY TOILS ON BIRTHDAY

Michael H. Crowley, for 16 years superintendent of the Boston police department, observed his 65th birthday yesterday, by appearing at his office at police headquarters to take a hand in the Guiffre gang shooting, which occurred in the North End, Saturday.

No other superintendent of police has ever stayed over his 65th birthday in the ranks of the uniform force, and never in the past has that office been occupied for so long a period.

Previously it had been stated that Superintendent Crowley was to retire on his 65th birthday but recent developments, as a result of an 11th hour conference between Mayor Curley and Police Commissioner Hultman, resulted, it was stated yesterday, in an agreement to hold over the superintendent for the present, at least.

Yesterday the "super" announced that he was going to stay on the job as long as he is allowed.

It is understood that Superintendent Crowley, who is second vice-president of the International Police Conference, is to remain in office until after the conference, representing 42 countries, meets here in the summer of 1932.

Yesterday the "super" after going to church, called for his three pals, his grandchildren, Jeanne Marie, 11, Richard P., 5, and Thomas J., 20 months, and after a ride visited headquarters, where he checked up the latest developments in the Guiffre shooting.

After he had finished his business and while his "pals" were romping around his office, the "super" leaned back in his chair and let his mind drift back to the past, when he first donned the blue and brass buttons.

QUICKEST WAY TO KNOCK A COLD

Millions Say of This Proved Way You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold go back to "Cascara Quinine" principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a little cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those stuffy, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; you soon leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Handshaking Seen as Peril to Health by Dr. Blaisdell

From a health standpoint, the uncovered hand is a dangerous thing, according to J. Harper Blaisdell, dermatologist, who gave the third of the series of free Sunday lectures at the Harvard Medical school.

These lectures are sponsored by the faculty of medicine of Harvard University and the capacity attendance so far has clearly demonstrated that the medical subjects chosen are of particular interest to the public

Dr. Blaisdell spoke on "Fungus Diseases of the Skin, Athletes Foot," etc.

HIGHLY INFECTIOUS

Dr. Blaisdell dwelt particularly on the condition known by the layman as "Athlete's Foot," which is primarily a fungus disease.

This is a highly infectious and peculiarly distressing inflammation of the skin covering the toes and arch and ball of the foot and is now known to be caused by a fungus parasite. The same parasite is found in similar inflammatory conditions on the hands

Dr. Blaisdell placed the different types of Athlete's Foot into three classifications. The common type easily recognized by the pale, sodden, scaly appearances between the toes or on the arch of the foot, comes on gradually and its discomforts are more or less varied

The second type comes on suddenly and is marked by intensive soreness often causing complete disability. A third form attacks the soles of the feet and, in the beginning, resembles heavy callousness

Any of these three distinct types of fungi may appear on the hands attacking even the nails, making them thick, deformed and of a yellowish brown color

MAY BE ROSSET

The speaker called attention to the fact that fungus infections are particularly partial to women who do considerable housework, especially in which very little or no soap has been used.

The doctor does not believe it can be found in beach sand or anywhere very close to the salt water. Car straps, handrails and doorknobs are the common sources of infection. The germs of athlete's foot may be in the hearty handclasp of a friend who has just scraped a hangnail on which his predecessor has recently squeezed the serum from an active infection. Dr. Blaisdell thinks it is within the realms of possibility that handshaking may become taboo and the old Roman arm grasp, or the nose rub of the savage revived.

Falls—Unhurt

YOUTH UNHURT IN PLANE CRASH

Kenneth Ham, 16-year-old student flier, of 17 Elmwood ave., Wollaston, escaped with only a small cut on his left wrist when he was forced to make an emergency landing while flying over East Milton yesterday, his plane crashing into a stone wall in Fenno field.

The landing gear was wrecked in a "pancake" landing, and the plane slid ahead for 30 feet before its nose crashed into the five-foot stone wall at the edge of the field. It is believed that the crash against the wall prevented the plane from overturning.

Occupants of a double house at 1 Fenno lane, East Milton, which was directly in the path of the plane, rushed out to assist the flier. Had the airplane been but 10 feet nearer the house at the time of the landing, it would have crashed into the front of the two-story dwelling

Ham, the son of the late Guy Ham, former Boston banker, had started out on a solo flight an hour before from Boston Airport. The motor ran well, he stated, until he was well over the town of Milton. Then the motor began to miss. Ham decided to return to the airport. Banking around until he was flying due north he crossed Fenno field and Granite ave., at an altitude of 2000 feet.

STONE ALSO IN "YOU AND I"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Jan. 19—What with all the high powered talent lining up at First National Studios it is interesting to note that a newcomer, Evelyn Knapp, has one of feminine leads in one of the most cherished plays, "You and I," at this studio.

Miss Knapp of course, is flanked by the excellent presence of Lewis Stone who plays the part of the father whose talents as an artist are frustrated by business and who starts out to rectify that when he reaches middle age. Al Green, director of "Disraeli" and "Old English," is the other background guide Miss Knapp, who, Louella O. Parsons •Jack Warner and Darryl Zanuck say, is coming right along neck and neck with their best headliners. Robert Presnell is writing the adaptation.

I wonder if I mentioned that "You and I," which was directed for the stage by Robert Milton, was the Harvard prize play and one of the most discussed plays of the year?

HERBERT BRENON has been laid up with pneumonia but now that he is convalescent he isn't losing any time getting himself back in shape to direct his next picture. If that old memory that sometimes plays had failed me I'd plan't going on one of its periodical spreed I am pretty sure that "The Next Corner," by Kate Jordan, Paramount in silent form. William Le Baron, who is in New York, has bought the film rights and it is being mentioned as one of Nadine's important pictures. This, incidentally, is Herbert Brenon's first under his new contract.

NAGEL PREDICTS BRIGHT FUTURE FOR FILMS

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

HOLLYWOOD BUSINESS CONDITIONS, movie personalities, and the future of sound pictures, were among the highlights of an interview I have just had with Curtis F. Nagel of Hollywood, a former Bostonian, who is now director and producer of motion pictures. Mr. Nagel is visiting relatives here, prior to sailing for Northern Africa, on February 14, for the filming of his next production.

MR. NAGEL declares that the producing end of the industry has turned the corner, and that studio activities, with adequate financial backing, are on the climb. Thus, the business seems definitely on its way out of the so-called "depression." Even the less conservative were very hard hit, but now their works hum mightily along merrily. Mr. Nagel declares "It looks for a prosperous 1931 in pictures, with distinct advancement to be noted all along the line. His reply to one of my questions regarding the outlook for the talkies was particularly interesting. It had to do with Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights," soon to be seen here.

Curtis F. Nagel

THIS AS TOU KNOW, is a silent picture. It is the only one made in America since the late Lon Chaney capitulated to the sound screen. What will be its influence upon the producers? How interested is the industry in the public's reception of this sole child of the old art of the motion picture" Mr. Nagel says:

"The Chaplin picture may be regarded as epochal. When the silver sheet got its voice, the industry, almost to a man, went talkie. To praise the silent drama was anathema. Producers crammed into pictures all the sound they would hold, they overdialogued them, they overplayed the musicals, they overdid almost everything. They forgot true values of the motion picture art—action, swing and sweep of the camera, play of lights and shadows, inciting of the imagination through the eye, to the end that the audience should become part and parcel of the story unfolded. Alas, too much sound cramped the art.

"The public reaction set in. The musicals, first of all, felt the change. Wise directors swung away from too much dialogue—they permitted sweeping silences.

"WHAT OF THE FUTURE? Charlie Chaplin's picture will have profound influence, probably. If his picture, without dialogue and soundless save as to the synchronized music, triumphs, there will be radical change in the situation. Producers, for some reason, have felt that the public wanted all-dialogue films. A Chaplin triumph would be followed by a stampede for more silences in pictures and a minimum of dialogue. Not that sound will go; it will always be a most valuable factor. But the emphasis will be placed upon natural sounds, and crisp, vital speech between characters, while the camera action of another era will return to far greater degree than in the talking picture period.

"The talkies lost much of the art; some day they will gain the old values back to a large extent. The chief factor will be dialogue which will not slow up a film, but which will be boiled down and calculated to advance the development of the plot. The directors of such pictures must know thoroughly the old silent technique. Then will dawn the day of the perfect sound movies."

RUSHER CONDITIONS in the studios are proven in the case of Mr. Nagel. He is a member of the producing firm of Brown & Nagel which has a two picture contract for 26 new films, and a contract in prospect for 12 more for 1931 delivery. Mr. Nagel, it may be said, is an outstanding expert in color in motion picture photography, by a new process he achieves almost perfect reproduction of natural colors. By this process he has already made two pictures, and will film the third this spring in Morocco and Algiers.

GOVERNOR TO HEAR OPERA

During the two weeks of grand opera offered annually in Boston by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, Tuesday, January 27, will be as gala an event as the grand opening night. For Tuesday evening will be "Governor's Night" and Governor and Mrs. Joseph B. Ely, their guests and the governor's staff, will occupy four boxes.

This occasion will mark the first public appearance socially of Governor and Mrs. Ely. "The Jewels of the Madonna" is the opera to be given.

KEITH BOSTON GIVES GALA PROGRAM

Good fun on screen and an RKO anniversary quality program on stage make the Keith Boston bill a most entertaining one this week. The variety toppnotcher is that pleasing personality of footlights and screen, Tom Patricola, who wins his audience from the start. He is assisted by the Pearl twins, Ethel and Florence. Best known as the dancing star of four editions of George White's "Scandals" and as the one who introduced the Charleston and Black Bottom, Patricola presents a hodgepodge of enjoyable nonsense and original dance routines.

Other good acts are Brooke and Rush, who offer a merry skit called "The Clean-Ups"; Powers and Jarrett in a summertime romance, Gwynne and Company with their tricks of magic, and the Cadet Sextette.

Laughs are handed out by Joe E. Brown in the picture, "Going Wild." In which he is mistaken for a famous authority on aviation and is forced into flying a plane in a race. Of course, he never flew before, but he has to pretend that he is a second Lindbergh and proceeds to set out to learn what he can about aviation. He rigs up a bed with ropes in such a manner that he can sit at the foot with the handle of a vacuum cleaner as the "Joyce Stick" and an aviation book as his guide and demonstrates how one may learn to become an aviator without leaving one's apartment. The love element is provided by Laura Lee, Ona Munson, Walter Pidgeon and Lawrence Gray.

AUTOMOBILE TOPICS

GOV. ELY GUEST OF HONOR AT AUTO SHOW

Governor Ely will be guest of honor tonight at the Boston automobile show which, entering upon its second day, continued to pile up new records for attendance, sales and sales prospects

The governor and his staff will be escorted from the Copley Plaza hotel to the show at Mechanics building at 7:45 p. m. by John McAiman, president, and other officials of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association under whose auspices the 29th annual event is being staged. Tonight will be known as "Governor's Night."

During the early hours of the day the greater part of the crowd which viewed the stupendous display of the latest auto models appeared to be members of the feminine set. Strolling from one hall to another they showed unusual interest not only in the appearance but also mechanical advantages of the new types of cars

COLORFUL SCENE

The exhibition hall, with its lavish Oriental settings providing a vivid background to the gay colors of the sport models and more sedate hues of the sedans and touring cars, was made more portentous by the varied-colored dresses and hats of the throng of women.

Dealers are particularly gratified at the success of the opening day of the $2,000,000 exhibit. Once again the pre-eminent position of Boston as an auto show city has been convincingly demonstrated, they believe

They join with Chester L. Campbell, director of the exhibition, in predicting an increased business over last year. With the restoration of industry in general, particularly in the automotive trade, dealers anticipate sales exceeding any in show history

TAX BOOST PROTEST

Considerable interest at the show centers around the booth of the Boston Automobile Club, the local unit of the American Automobile Association. Petitions opposing any proposed increase in the gasoline tax are being signed there. The petition is addressed to the State Legislature and the first signature is that of Chester L. Campbell, director of the show and secretary of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association.

Tonight will be Chinese night at the show. Delegates from the leading Chinese clubs and institutions will attend the exhibit as the special guests of Chester L. Campbell. Prof F. T. Ching of Tsing Hua College, Peiping, will speak on the possibilities of automotive exports to China.

IN NATIVE COSTUMES

Many Chinese women and young people will attend the show in their native costumes and this, with the Oriental motif in the settings, is expected to give an Eastern touch to a truly Western display. The Chinese Boy Scouts will act as guides to their countrymen at the show.

Another interesting event scheduled for this evening is a dinner, banquet and frolics of the Automotive Booster Club of New England. This celebration, which is scheduled to start at the Hotel Statler at 10 p. m., is expected to draw a large crowd and last far into the night.

MODEL COACH AT AUTO SHOW

The miniature model of the Fisher body coach, similar to the ones which members of the Boston American Chapter of the Fisher Body Guild will make, is being displayed at the Auto Show in Mechanics Building.

The second exhibition of this model will enable boys who did well along on their coach to check up and compare their work with a finished product. Fifty thousand dollars in prizes are offering in this nationwide contest, which will be judged by a group of distinguished men.

Zionist Congress Delayed

London, Jan. 19—The actions committee of the World Zionist Organization has postponed the Zionist congress, scheduled for Feb. 21 at Karlsbad, Czecho-Slovakia.

Grace and Beauty—Buick

HERE IS THE 1931 Buick Model 8-96, five-passenger coupe, now on display at the Boston Auto Show.

With Rumble Seat Feature

A STRIKING EXAMPLE of a convertible coupe created for the Cadillac V-16 by Fleetwood. The rumble seat opens from inside the car by remote control. The unusual slope to the windshield and the graceful coach body still are distinguished features.

ALL COLORS IN AUTO SHOW

Ranging through all the colors of the spectrum, from solid greens, blues and blacks and on to an infinite variety of delicate pastel shades, the Automobile Show this year offers one of the finest polychrome exhibits the industry has ever produced, according to Kingston Forbes, assistant chief engineer

There are few combinations that lack harmony and good taste, which is remarkable, since there could hardly be enough really suitable shades to go round. The individual, too, differs in opinion as to what tints he prefers on his motor car.

The Buick Motor Co. for many years has made a constant study of public taste in the matter of automobile colorings and has found that the popularity of any given color is short lived. One year the vogue is blue, the next it may swerve to green, or black, or maroon.

Then, too, color popularity is largely dependent on location.

AUBURN HAS 5 NEW MODELS

Auburn, Ind., Jan 19—A complete new line of Straight Eight custom automobiles has been announced by the Auburn Automobile Co. This line is known as the Model 8-98 A.

Three cars are entirely new in design, both in bodies and chassis, and are a considerable departure from conventional practice in addition to silent mesh transmission constant automatic chassis lubrication, X-type cross member frame construction, the custom models incorporate L. G. S. Free Wheeling and seven of other innovations. The highest model is 68 inches in height, while the Phaeton Sedan stands only 65 inches high. These have 127-inch wheel-base and are distinctly new and individual. Auburn has again created an individuality for itself

In addition to the custom line the company also announced a standard line which includes five body models.

Thomas B. Clarke Dead

New York, Jan. 19 (US)—Thomas Benedict Clarke, 83, banker and one of the foremost collectors of early American art, died yesterday in his home, 22 East 53th st., from a complication of ailments.

Franklin Series 15 De Luxe Club Sedan

ORDERS WHICH ARE REACHING the factory from all parts of the country are evidence of the popularity of this new Franklin Series 15 Club Sedan. A closed-coupled, personal car with the chumminess of a coupe yet ample seating room for five people is provided, the rear seat being as wide as the Standard Sedan. The front seat is adjustable and is unusually comfortable, the library cushions easing the strain of the longest drive. Women are showing a marked preference for this model of the airplane-type car.

FIRESTONE HAD INCREASE IN PAST YEAR

A. T. McGrath, Boston branch manager of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, O., announces his company has increased their dollars and unit volume of sales for the year 1930, despite a substantial decline in the motor industry.

Questioned as to the story behind this unusual record, Mr. McGrath pointed out that this announcement is one in dollars and cents means a still greater increase in the number of Firestone tires sold in the Boston branch territory in 1930

He attributed this to the increased aggressiveness of the Firestone dealer organization during the past year and, also, to the cooperative program launched by the Firestone Company in which the Firestone dealer joined with the company in a sales campaign launched in the newspapers of every principal city in the country.

The advertising copy was prepared by men experienced in selling work with the idea of making it productive in immediate sales More advertising space was purchased in the newspapers in 1930 by Firestone Company and Firestone dealers in the Boston Branch area, than in 1929.

The new Firestone High Speed Heavy Duty tire was announced during the year 1930. This tire is identical in construction to the tires which won the Indianapolis Motor Sweepstakes Classic on May 30, 1930, for the eleventh consecutive year.

Another advance of importance was won through the introduction of the use of two extra cord plies under the tread and the elimination from the line of the old-fashioned square woven fabric breaker strip

Ring at Door

Coates pinch the cord. The coming out the door bell just then Betty admitted a tall, ill-clad young man, addressed elderly couple. Was second sentence passed to find the Thatchers.

Ole Edmund L. Foster, father of the missing girl, was a tall, bent man, with shrewd, keen eyes and large, red gnarled hands which dangled at his sides and gave him a helpless air. His wife was almost as tall as he had quite stout, her round face was unlined, and her hair sparkled excitedly behind double-lensed glasses.

After the introduction Thatcher Colt explained to the old couple the steps that were being taken to look for their daughter.

"Mr. Colt," interrupted the mother, with an energetic shake of her head, "there won't any of this get into the papers, will there?"

Thatcher Colt explained that if Geraldine continued absent, the help of the press would be invaluable

"It ruins a girl's reputation to run away," said old Mr. Foster, his voice rumbling in his throat. "And I want you to understand right from the start that Gerry was a good girl. She never got herself into any trouble and never would. There's never been any reflection on our family name, and there never will be."

Thatcher Colt expressed his full confidence in this declaration. He then began interrogating Mr. and Mrs. Foster and soon was obtaining a verbal picture of the family, their background and history, and all about their former residence in the mountains of western Maryland, where Mr Foster had made a substantial fortune in his bond instrument factory.

Thatcher Colt asked some questions about their son, Bruce, and then inquired why he remained behind at such a time

Gone on Search

"Oh," said Mrs. Foster, with a proud roll of her eyes, "he didn't stay home. Bruce thinks he knows where she is, and he's gone out to look for her himself."

"Where does the young man think she is?" asked the Commissioner quickly.

"We couldn't drag it out of him," explained old Mr. Foster. "He just told us he was going and he wasn't coming back without his sister."

"When was that?"

"This afternoon."

The investigator expressed his thanks for this information.

"Now I would like to have your permission," he said, "to make a search of your daughter's

Society Woman's Body Unclaimed

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 19—A body identified as that of Mrs. Cecilia Marchand, once prominent in Pittsburgh society and a schoolmate of Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, lay unclaimed in the city morgue last night. It was found in a poorly furnished room yesterday.

Betty Canfield flushed with indignation

"Mr. Colt——"

"Pass, pass," interrupted the Commissioner, "I meant no offense."

"But Geraldine talked to me about her employer because I did not like her working for the doctor—I distrusted him."

"Again—why?"

Liked Doctor

"Instinctly, as I told you. That feeling led us to talk a good deal about him. Geraldine would come home and tell me about how he raved against his own family, because they shut him out—calling his daughter a money-grabbing banshee, making fun of her drawing and singing, and calling his own father a decrived old man. Geraldine used to feel badly about it. And when Mrs. Maskell—the doctor's sister-in-law—went to Europe last summer, I think the doctor tried to make up with George. But it didn't work and the doctor cursed around the office so that again I tried to make Geraldine resign."

"Did she wouldn't?"

"No—she liked him as much as I disliked him."

Colt nodded thoughtfully.

"Hmm," he said suddenly, "You mentioned that your roommate sometimes stayed away on weekends and holidays."

"Occasionally."

"Did she always confide in you about her personal matters?"

"She used to, but not lately; she often talked to me about the jealousy of Harry Thatcher, her fiance, for instance, but for the last few months she has been quite secretive. Ever since she began to talk about having royal blood in her veins."

Thatcher Colt leaned forward

"What made her say that, Betty?"

"Some one had written to her about her family tree."

"I see. She stopped telling you her secrets then?"

"I don't mean there was any connection. But she did keep her business to herself—most of the time."

"Perhaps you may save her life, you know, by telling everything you know or suspect."

"I don't know anything. And besides — suppose she were to come back this minute and find me telling you—"

NEW INTEREST IN AIR-COOLING

Never before in the history of the automobile industry has there been such concentration of study of all methods of cooling, and despite the fact that American pioneer air-cooled car, the Franklin has been before the public for nearly 30 years. Many persons still ask why this engine has not interest in air cooling. Says F. E. Marks, Franklin's chief engineer:

Chiefly, it is the rapid development of air cooling in the past few years that has aroused engineering circles to the save. This development has applied not only to the air-cooled Franklin engine, but also to the marked advancement of the air-cooled power plant in aviation. In fact, so far as aviation is concerned the air-cooled engine in America has been almost universally adopted, as 90 per cent of the modern airplanes use air cooling, and judging from overseas reports, the same swing toward air cooling is taking place in the European airplane industry.

The increasing contact of technical men with air-cooled engines means that there are many new minds studying the principles, whereas in the past a big part of the progress had to come through efforts of Franklin engineers alone. The aircraft engine industry and also the United States Government research base of late years contributed greatly to air cooling knowledge

DEFINITE TREND FOR CAR DESIGN

By LAWRENCE P. FISHER
President Cadillac Motor Car Co.

American motor car design has been following a clear and definite trend toward the multicylinder power plant since the earliest days of the motorless locomotive. The first single cylinder engines were soon replaced by two cylinder, two cylinders, by four, five, six and eight cars have, in the main, given place to eight and six to eight.

This trend has, of course, first been evidenced in cars of higher price. The first fours were more expensive than the two-cylinder car, generally speaking. The first sixes cost more than the fours. Early eight cylinder automobiles of which the pioneer was the Cadillac Type 51 introduced in 1915, represented a distinct advance in luxury and performance and sold for a proportionately higher price.

Today, in the higher price fields where the buyers desire for constantly improved performance, smoothness, and individualized luxury can most fully be gratified we find the eight cylinder engine acquiring new running mates in the forge of 12 and 16 cylinder power plants

DOUBLE PAINT JOBS ON REO

The lustrous coats that adorn the new line of Reo Motor Cars are derived from two double coats of color, applied over an extra-hard foundation, with a rubdown and "mist" coating of clear lacquer in between

Relatively to other cars on the road, this treatment practically represents finishing the bodies completely and then doing the job all over again By the method Reo is aiming for a double-life paint job a newness that will not rub off after the first few months of actual use

The color designs on the various new models are notable for their subdued richness The Reo motor artists have striven successfully to be in the mode, while avoiding the radical and flashy.

BIG LOANS FOR HIGHWAYS SOUGHT

New York, Jan. 19 (US)—Inflationary borrowing exerted by civil welfare bodies on municipal authorities in many parts of the country to push plans for new construction and highway projects in order to alleviate unemployment promises to bring a substantial volume of new city and state securities to public market before early spring

ARKANSAS LEADS

Some of these offerings will represent authorizations obtained at last November elections when a total of $400,000,000 municipal bond issues were approved by the nation's voters

First operation in this program was consummated during the past week when the state of Arkansas sold $15,000,000 highway notes. This financing is preliminary to the issuance of long term securities in the year

Initial portion of a $60,000,000 state of Louisiana loan for the same purpose was also placed

Reported financing under consideration at the moment involves several offerings amounting to $100,000,000 and more in some instances. The loans will probably be split up in three or perhaps five different series and are likely to be offered at intervals of three months or thereabouts as the funds are needed. The states of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Mississippi, New Jersey and New York are expected to be the principal borrowers private effects. We might find something—"

FOCH: A GREAT FIGURE IN AMERICAN HISTORY

HE COMMANDED THE LARGEST AMERICAN ARMY EVER ASSEMBLED

It is a coincidence that two of the greatest figures in American military history were not Americans at all and that both were Frenchmen. One, of course, was that young aristocrat, the Marquis de la Fayette, who led a handful of adventurous Frenchmen here to help Washington and who has been the hero of the American schoolboy since. The other is Ferdinand Foch, that spirited little Frenchman, the driving force of victory, who as Supreme Commander of the Allies, directed the largest American Army ever assembled.

Copper is one of the six primitive metals, said to have been first discovered in Cyprus. In England, copper mines were discovered in 1561. The Romans used crude pieces of copper for money prior to Servius Tullius' reign.

Friends Should Be Made With Care

—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am a young German, 32 years of age, and I am awfully lonesome. Have been in America for five and a half years and have never been out of work. I am an art book binder, a designer and earn $55 a week. I have just returned from Germany, where I have spent the summer, three weeks ago. Could you tell me where I could find some nice company, or how I could meet a good girl? I'd like to get married in the near future. I am tired of running around alone.

LONESOME BOY.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Lonesome Boy: It doesn't do, when you find yourself in a strange city, to try to make acquaintances too quickly. Friends are our best assets, and we have to be rather deliberate about acquiring them. Your letter is typical of so many I receive from young men and women who are employed in strange cities, and, naturally, are lonely.

There is only one way to make desirable friends and that is through people you know and trust. Young men have an easier time getting acquainted than girls. Almost any man who works with you in the same office, shop or trade will introduce you to the right sort of girl if he knows you're all right. Say, very frankly, to any man you know pleasantly through your business or social connections that you're a stranger and would like to become acquainted.

Feels He Is Ashamed of Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I went to a dance at a summer garden and was properly introduced to a swell young man by a name not his own. He was introduced as Mr. Smith. I knew his real name, and, after our dance when we were sitting outside, I began to guy him for being introduced under a false name. Told him where he could rent false whiskers and things like that. He fell for me, all right, and we had a lovely time. Since then he's asked me to dine with him and he takes me to the swellest places. He makes love, but not the kind I want. And once when he was with his mother and saw me he hardly raised his hat. I fell in love with this young man and, in spite of the things he does—things like rolling his eyes when I make a mistake in grammar—I am very fond of him. I think being in love is a sort of unhappy happiness, don't you? I never used to feel cheap about my mistakes, till I knew him. What's your idea of this friendship?

SALESLADY

Dear Saleslady: I'd lose no time in ironing out those few little mistakes and I'd show this Prince Charming that I could speak as correctly as any girl in his group. Your idea of refusing to go off on long, lonely trips with this young man is right. And as he continues to take you to dinner, shows and dances he is "intrigued" (that's the word they use) that you continue to keep him at arm's length.

Foot-Fitting Good-Looking Shoes for Men

—Directed by AMOS PARRISH—

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—Do you know how many miles you walked yesterday, Mr. Man?

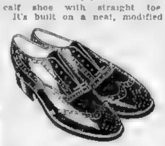
If you're an average man in an average job, you walked just about $7\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the time you put on your shoes until you took them off at night.

If you're a salesman, a clerk or a letter carrier, you may have walked from five to ten miles more.

Black calf business shoes

Pretty important, isn't it, to wear shoes that fit well? And almost as important that your feet look as good as they feel. There are few things that count more in a man's appearance than a pair of well-shined, well-designed shoes.

You men know that. Which is one good reason why the most fashionable man's shoe in America today, according to our shoe fashion check-ups, is the black calf shoe with straight toe. It's built on a neat, modified English last—just wide enough at the ball and toe to accommodate a normal foot without too much or too little room to spare.



Wing-tip shoe

It's a good-looking shoe, correct for any business occasion. It's plainly stitched and untrimmed except for the perforated toe-cap strip.

Heavier Winter Shoes

In fall and winter, this same style shoe in a heavier Scotch grain leather is preferred by many men. Usually this heavier type shoe is punched along the seaming and on the toe-cap. Many men like it with the edges of the seams "pinked," or sawtoothed.

Another popular version of the smooth calf shoe is the blucher model. Here the tongue of the shoe is an extension of the front part or vamp. The sketch shows what a good-looking shoe it is.

Plain, soft toe shoe

Some men will recognize it from their army days. Most of the shoes worn by the doughboys were blucher type, but high shoes rather than oxfords.

More and more men—particularly younger men—are wearing the wing-tip type of shoe in either calf or Scotch grain leather. Most often they're heavily perforated in the seams and on the toe-cap—brogued, as the shoe men say.

Wing Tips Less Formal

Wing tip shoes are really best for less formal wear. But so many college men and young business men are wearing them to all kinds of places — from sporting events to Wall st. offices—that they've become correct for most every daytime purpose.

Another type shoe men are going in for more are shoes with plain, soft toes. Most often they're in three pieces—toe, saddle (the middle strip) and the back or counter.

They're worn in one leather throughout, or in a combination of smooth leather toe and counter with pebbled leather saddle. This is really a sports shoe, but since thousands of men wear it to business, too—that makes it a business fashion.

Patent dress shoe

Black shoes far outnumber brown shoes according to our counts. And fewer and fewer tan yellowish tan—shoes are seen. The fashionable brown shoe is a rich chocolate color.

Plain-Toed Dress Shoes

In dress shoes, one is outstanding. That's the plain-toed patent leather—simple and neat as can be. It's also popular with a straight toe. And both these types are perferred in dull calf leather by men who don't care for the shininess of patent leather.

Revealing a Secret Marriage

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Once again I come to you for help—this time with a more difficult problem.

I am working and living at home and I want to get married and keep it a secret for about six months. My fiance and I are planning to meet in a city and get married secretly. The reason for doing this is: My [illegible] not afford [illegible] and I'd like to work for [illegible] after. Will you kindly tell [illegible] I am going to announce [illegible] the time comes for [illegible] known? Can I send out announcements? I would like to do this because I have quite a number of friends and relatives at a distance and I don't know any other way of letting them know.

TROUBLED

Welcome again to my column!

When the time comes when you wish to make this important announcement, I suggest that you don't send formal announcements, since, apparently, it will be some time after the [illegible]. Instead write notes [illegible] formal notes to your relatives and friends telling them of your marriage. This will be in much better taste and will not be so [illegible] as the other way.

Acknowledging Floral Pieces

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Should the words "Mr." be used when acknowledging floral pieces when the father is the only living parent, or just the father's name in full?

2. Is it necessary to acknowledge letters and cards of sympathy?

B. V.

1. If the plan is to send engraved acknowledgments, [illegible] the formal form of the name should be used: Mr. Henry Allen. These cards are not in such good form as are the written notes of thanks, but of course they are [illegible].

2. Yes. Every note, every box of flowers, should be acknowledged with a note of appreciation.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Boy Who Could Accept Spanking and Smile

—By WINIFRED BLACK—

I HEARD him crying that morning, the little boy who lives in the pretty little court below.

Such a nice, rosy, round faced little boy as he is.

Out every morning of his life this [illegible] touring [illegible] he and his outrageous little short pants and ridiculous sweater and funny little mite of a hat.

He has a kiddy car and a teddy bear and a bounding ball and now all at once he has a puppy. The funniest little black puppy you ever saw in your life. He looks exactly like a little black pig, but oh, what dancing black eyes he has and such a [illegible] white [illegible] and the way he sits and cocks his head on one side and waves his paws—I don't wonder the little boy is crazy about "Cappy Ricks," the little black puppy.

Winifred Black

But this morning something or other happened to the puppy or to the little boy and his mother ran out and took him in the house, and and as soon as the door closed there was a wailing and a weeping and I knew the little boy was being spanked.

I don't know what it was all about, but I didn't like the sound of it, so I went into the other room and shut the door and felt outraged and grieved. At one particular howl of rage and sorrow I almost made up my mind to down to the court and have a talk with the little boy's mother.

But just as I was considering whether I would have to wear my heaviest coat or what, I heard a laugh and I looked out in the court and there was the little boy and puppy, and what do you think the little boy was doing?

His rosy, black-eyed little mother was kneeling down pulling his cap further down over his ears and he had his chubby arms around her neck and was kissing her and hugging her like one o'clock!

And they were both laughing and the puppy, quite wild with delight, was waltzing round and round as if someone had wound him up with a magic key, and he barked and barked and you couldn't help laughing to save your life.

The little boy seemed to have forgotten all about the spanking.

When I leaned out of the window to speak to him he waved his chubby hand in gay greeting.

"Hello!" said the little boy. "See Cappy dance."

And then we all laughed together, all but "Cappy" and he looked as if he would laugh, too, if he just knew how.

And I thought of the afternoon I spent with my friend the other day. My friend who has the three little children, two boys and a girl.

And how the boys quarreled and the little boy showed off and the whole house was a regular pandemonium of spoiled bad behavior.

Well, her children have certainly "developed their ego," all right.

I wonder which of these children the little boy who was spanked, or the boys and the girl who are never disciplined at all will be happiest and best when they grow up and go out into the world which somehow or other seems to prefer people who accept discipline of one sort or other every day of their lives and keep right on smiling just the same.

Some Rules to Follow on the Road to Health

—By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.—

IT IS A good thing to take stock of ourselves once in a while.

After a summer out of doors, we come back to city and town with brown faces and good health. These are the result of having lived a more natural existence than we do the rest of the year.

Dr. Copeland

Probably, if we were to ask the average person how many hours a day he spends out doors during the winter months he would be evasive on the subject. As a matter of fact many persons do not enjoy good health because they are not enough out-of-doors.

There are certain health rules that all could follow with good results, if they would. Most persons are so busy they really do not give enough thought to rules of health. Of course, the less we think about disease the better for us. At the same time it is needful to map our day so that we shall be doing the things that make for good health.

Suppose we consider today some of the rules that should help us along the road of good health. You know them as well as I do, but somehow or other they are not observed as they should be. There is something about human nature that makes us resentful of rules and prohibitions. We are willing to be led but not driven.

But bear with me if I remind you of your shortcomings. You may write and remind me of mine. Then we will be even!

As regards the eating rules—have you any that you really observe? Or do you as regularly as sunrise eat too much food? Honestly, is that the reason you are taking on weight?

Overeating is one of the common faults of mankind—and this includes womankind. An excess of proteins—meat and eggs, is as great a fault as the taking of too much of the sweets.

To have good health, some of the bulky, raw foods should be consumed every day. Cabbage, lettuce, apples and celery are some of the things that come to my mind.

Eat slowly, enjoy your food, get its real taste. Drink lots of water, not at meals, but between times.

Taking an abundance of water aids the elimination. It helps to keep the intestines clean. The waste materials and poisons are carried away when there is plenty of water in the system.

You know as well as anybody that plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room is essential to health. Impure air and insufficient rest are responsible for many ills.

Light, loose, porous clothing will increase your well-being. Men are given to wearing too heavy clothing. A reform in this matter would be an aid to health.

Get out of doors all you can. Hold your chin up, your stomach in and your spine straight. Walk vigorously and act as if living were a joy. Then you will be fit company for kings and common men!

Answers to Health Queries

X-Y. Q.—Is there a cure for colitis?

2—What is oedema of the veins—is this anything like arthritis?

3—What will improve the circulation and health in general?

4—Do swollen feet indicate arthritis?

A.—This depends upon the extent and seriousness of the trouble. In some cases proper diet and care will bring about a cure. For further particulars send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—This disturbance is a swelling or puffiness of the part, due to an accumulation of fluid in the tissue. No, it is more like varicose veins.

3—Improve your health and the circulation will take care of itself.

4—Not necessarily, although the trouble may be due to this disturbance. Have the kidneys examined to make sure they have no bearing on the trouble.

A WORRIED MOTHER. Q.—My boy of eight is apparently well and healthy with red lips and rosy cheeks but he has bluish shadows under his eyes which are more noticeable owing to the fact that he has a very white skin. Is a condition of this kind serious in any way? He has had worms.

A.—This may be of little significance but it would be wise to have a thorough examination to locate a possible cause. Be sure the worms have been definitely eradicated and be sure that his bowels move regularly.

TIGER HEART -:- -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

"Don't be a fool!"

"I'm sorry, Jim. That's the way I feel about it though, and nothing you can say will change me."

"You mean to tell me that you think more of this girl than you do of me? Here I rack my brains figuring out a way to handle our money and invest it, and you come in at the last minute, 'Oh, Jim, we've got to whack up with an outsider who says she's my sister. You're only my husband, you haven't got a word to say about it. I suppose you're figuring on bringing her along on our honeymoon trip, too?"

Connie's jaw had been clamped. When she spoke, her lips, which had been compressed, relaxed only slightly.

"I certainly intend to treat her like a real sister. How it will turn out—I don't know; but I'm going to have her live with me for a while."

Insane Ideas

"Of all the insane ideas—"

"She's my sister," Connie said, steadily. "I've made up my mind once and for all, Jim, and nothing you can say will alter it. I came to you tonight thinking you would feel exactly as I do about it. Your advice, I thought, would help me to find a way to do it. I can't go to mother and tell her this whole terrible story straight out. It's already a strain enough on her to see her only daughter married, but there is a way, and a right and decent way, to do the fair and square thing. It's simply got to be done, Jim, and I can't believe that you don't agree with me. It's a question of honor, but it can't be dodged."

He gave a short, sarcastic laugh.

"How about honoring your husband's viewpoint; that's a question of honor, too, isn't it? No, the trouble with you, you are an emotional girl, and I see right now that I've got to protect you from yourself. I simply must put my foot down and refuse to let this thing go any further. There's too much money at stake, and after your mother dies there'll be a lot more. Can't you see it?"

She did not answer him at once. She was conscious of the most disconcerting feeling about him. She was milling around in her mind. The thought came to her bewilderingly that, in spite of her engagement to Jim Tracy, she knew so little about his inner self. She had not imagined he would be like this at all. In her mind she had always pictured him a genial and charming person. Along with those virtues she had imagined went the sturdier qualities.

"There's no use arguing this, Connie," he went on. "Our job in life is to make each other happy, and there would be no happiness for us if you try to rule this roost."

"There's no happiness for us," she reminded him, "if you can't te" the difference between right and wrong. I took you on faith up until now, Jim. I believed in you and was willing to trust my whole life in your hands but you've shown yourself a different sort from the man I was to marry.

A startled look came into his face.

"Come here, dear—" His arms started to encircle her. "You're all tired and worn out—"

But she put a restraining hand on his shoulder and held him away. Slowly, she shook her head.

"Jim, let's not ruin each other's lives. I thought you were different. We see each other now in our true lives—and it can't go on—it just can't be—"

"You don't know what you're saying!" he cried, excitedly.

"I know what I'm saying, and I know the truth about each of us, only too well. You're still dear to me, Jim—but there's something missing. Whatever it is, it's fatal—we can't be married tomorrow."

Suddenly, she felt as though a great weight had been lifted from her mind . . . from her heart . . .

It seemed like a dream to Connie — that all of her wedding plans could be broken, destroyed . . . by mere words . . . Yet she knew, now, that tomorrow's wedding would never take place.

Jim Tracy's face was contorted with horrified distress.

"You don't know what your're saying! You're out of your head, Connie . . . of course, we're going to be married tomorrow—"

"No, Jim—we're not. It would be a frightful mistake—just something we drifted into. We'd never find happiness."

"Connie darling . . . darling . . "

Against her will he got his arms around her and crushed her to his chest, covered her face with kisses but there was no power in him, now, to stir her, no electric tingle. She struggled free from his embrace.

"I don't feel like I've betrayed you—letting you down at the last minute. It's a favor I'm doing you, really. You wouldn't find happiness with me, we're too different."

"The excitement has been too much for you, dear. Let me take you home to your mother, you don't realize what your saying."

"No use; it's all off, Jim."

"But the wedding presents!" he cried, driven desperately to seizing upon a triviality. "And what will people say? They expect us to get married at noon—"

In her own mind the minor difficulties dissolved into nothing.

"We can send the presents back, Jim. The first thing in the morning we'll notify everybody by telephone that the wedding's off. We can lie a little—we'll say I've been taken ill and postponed the wedding indefinitely. Oh, Jim, it's far better this way than to chain ourselves to lifelong unhappiness. We still have time to stop it. Don't—don't feel so badly, dear. You'll thank me some day—"

Ghastly White

His face was ghastly white. She thought he was about to break into tears and he did. Tears of rage and [illegible] d[illegible] swam in his eyes and streamed down his cheeks.

"For a low-flung girl off Tenth ave. you'd throw me down!" he declared, in a shaking voice. "You take me and make a monkey of me—push me out on quicksands and let me sink . . "

"Hush — hush — you don't know what you're saying!"

"If a man did a girl like this she could sue him for breach of promise if he had anything—" Jim Tracy cried bitterly. "What have I done to change you? I never dreamed anything would happen like this . . ."

Connie looked at him with [illegible] [illegible] eyes. Before her [illegible] traces of staunch character that a wife might lean upon. She found hers if nothing him.

"You'll get over it," she said, wisely.

Lowly Cucumber Enters on the Field of Beauty

—By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON—

THE SUMMER tan that persists on back and shoulders despite heroic treatments is the bane of many women this local season, for the new evening gowns are indeed low cut.

Josephine Huddleston

So today we will continue our back-beauty suggestions. In one article of this series we talked about the milder liquid bleaches. Here is one which is probably the most effective of all.

Cucumber bleach is the last of the mild lotions. There is more work in the preparing of it, but you can make up enough of the preparation at one time to last for a number of treatments.

To make this bleach two lotions are necessary: Cucumber Essence—chop six large, ripe cucumbers and cover them with an amount of alcohol equal to their own bulk. Let this stand for 12 hours and then strain off the liquid through a double layer of cheesecloth.

The second lotion: Cucumber Juice—chop up half a dozen rather large cucumbers and let them simmer over a slow fire until they are soft. Be sure to turn the flame low and keep the pan covered so none of the juice will be lost. When the cucumbers are mealy, remove them from the fire and strain off the juice through a double layer of cheese cloth. You are now ready to make the bleaching lotion itself.

Shave one-half ounce of olive oil soap and add to this four ounces of the cucumber essence, stirring it until the soap has melted. Add five ounces of sweet almond oil to 12 ounces of the cucumber juice. Put the two liquids into a large glass bottle and shake briskly for 10 minutes. Then slowly add two ounces of rose water and one dram of benzoin.

To use the bleach, apply liberally to the skin after washing it with lukewarm water and a bland soap such as castile. Rinse the skin thoroughly. Then dry and apply the cucumber lotion, letting it dry into the skin.

The Marry-Go-Round—And Yet They Love Us

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

THERE PROBABLY isn't a divorcee living who doesn't feel that she would have made an ideal wife if she had married almost any other man.

A man proves his love by the things he is willing to DO for a woman's sake; a woman proves hers by the things she is willing to do WITHOUT for a man's sake.

If alimony were abolished, more men would be anxious to brave the sea of matrimony and fewer women would be rushing for the life boats.

The old-fashioned girl started the boys dreaming of "love in a bungalow" by showing them what she could do with a cook-book and a chafing-dish; the modern girl starts them wondering about the price of a kitchenette-apartment by showing them what she can do with a cocktail shaker.

When the genial G. K. Chesterton asserts that it was probably the cave-woman who carried the club, and that the cave man was the first authentic edition of "Mr. Jiggs," he little knows how many young feminine illusions he shatters.

No matter what kind of face a girl is born with these days, by the time she finishes putting on the modern improvements it is something that Nature never dreamed of.

The "Bachelor Girls' Exhibition" in London features a Chamber of Horrors, which include a ducking-stool, a scold's bridle, boned collars, steel-ribbed corsets and forcible feeding.

It is not disclosed whether or not this priceless exhibit contains eyebrow-tweezers, invisible stockings, face-peelers, spike-heeled shoes, summer furs, backless evening gowns, sleeping pajamas, face-lifting instruments, permanent waving machines and reducing diets including spinach—all the instruments of torture with which women starve, freeze, parboil and mangle themselves today.

High Finance Finds Outlook Is Improving

Definite Betterment Signs Aren't Very Numerous; Trade Picks Up

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York Jan 19 Andrew W Robertson head of Westinghouse, visiting New York the other day remarked

"I find a notable change in sentiment since I was last here, before the end of the year. There is much less nervousness and more hopefulness.

That accurate picture, what is perhaps the most significant development of

B. C. Forbes

recent weeks

Will December prove to have marked bottom in business?

Responsible financial men recently accommodated are pretty expressing that belief

Actual happenings in support of that view are neither numerous nor definitely convincing. But there are straws the hopeful can point out

The steel industry is doing distinctly better and is talking about a possible early strengthening in prices Leading copper manufacturers have a slightly better quotations for distant delivery abroad and are not eager to fool up with home orders well far ahead The general down swing in commodity prices has checked a Dealers are piping an encouraging volume of orders for automobiles with the result that factory payrolls are greatly increasing

Says Bradstreet s

"The coal trade has noted a slight increase in buying. Additional interesting features of the week have been more interest manifested in wool, hides and leather, this notably at Boston, where dry goods, men's wear and jewelry have also reported more business In the hardwood districts in the central valley more hopefulness is visible, while the report from the soft wood industry is of continued rather quiet conditions ruling."

Says Dun s

"The public buying power, as disclosed by distribution of goods all has shown geographical variations, yet the rise in employment, even if more or less restricted in area, is constructive. A point of great interest in the prevailing unusual circumstances is the movement of wholesale commodity quotations, and their comprehensive list has made a better showing since January opened."

Turning to the exchanges we find that wheat has held above 80 cents in Chicago and corn close to 70 cents Cotton has maintained the 10-cent level in New York rubber has surged quickly below 18 cents and another rush in the prices was announced Tin is slightly lower

The New York Stock Exchange has witnessed irregularity with a net average loss of 3 points for the week However it is regarded as significant that offerings of stocks dried up during periods of weakness causing no heavy selling The market action has tended to encourage the growing belief that stocks have been sold to a standstill It is figured that every modest public buying would immediately start a rise

One successful oil corporation in the country has reported to the week to stockholders by Albert H Wiggin head of the largest bank in America All other reports of immediate reduction in wages of tariff revision, of cutting down of war debts could be by forgiving nations and drastic lowering of the tax rate on capital profits has evoked widespread endorsement as the night to give new and shrewd Doubtless expressed in earning the likelihood of such reductions but it is generally believed in the financial world that all other recommendations will be carried out even as they not in the end of future November standing in the way of such movements advanced in favor of relief to foreigners of a larger part of their war debts the refusal of American taxpayers to today in no mood to shoulder additional taxation

Both Mr Wiggin and Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank, foresee gradual recovery, although both are careful not to specify the date on which improvement will presumably set in.

"This, as already stated, signs of betterment are still rather scarce it is not least somewhat consuming to sense that the most powerful interests in this country feel justified in stating the situation distinctly more cheerfully

LEADERS AGREE YEAR FOR AUTOS WILL BE GOOD

By FRANK H. MELOON

Leadership opinion in the automotive industry, on which numerous others depend largely for their guidan, is that 1931 will prove itself a good year The Detroit makers of low-price cars, on the basis of January sales Manager A C Vane of the National Automobile Dealers Assn says 4,000,000 cars will be sold this year The Alexander Hamilton Institute gives us a much higher estimate saying that the present outlook is for production in the United States in 1931 will about equal the 1928 output when 4,538,000 cars were manufactured This means that the output of motor cars in 1931 will exceed the 1929 output 3,536,000 cars by 501 per cent

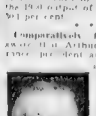
Comparatively few people are aware that Arthur Chapman, manufacturer and genera



Arthur C. Durgance

new automobile and his first in earnest entry in the automotive field was with the Durant organization, which he joined as assistant general manager of sales in 1921 Two years later he was made general manager of sales and in 1924 was elected a director of the Durant Motors, Inc Subsequently he became president of the Durant Motors of New Jersey, Inc, and vice president of the Durant-American Road Co , a gasoline station subsidiary of the Mercantile Stores Co , and president of the Durant Motors of Canada, Ltd In 1927 he was made vice president and general manager of sales of the Locomobile Co of America, Inc, and in 1928 was elected president of the Auburn Automobile Co, which position he held until 1929 when he resigned to become president of the Durgance Motor Co , a new automobile company which is now in the process of organization

Will automobiles of the future travel without headlights? Of course someone will suggest that a device be made to enable the driver to see by means of rays from the headlights of the car itself, but this would be of no help in meeting an approaching car with the headlights on Perhaps the solution will be found in the use of colored lights, but this would be of no help in meeting a car with white lights Perhaps the solution will be found in the use of colored lights, but this would be of no help in meeting a car with white lights

Wall Street writer today suggested we add to the list of unusual and eminently reasonable ideas which have been put forward under hard circumstances, namely, that the performance of the late Calvin Coolidge in refusing to run again be emulated by Herbert Hoover, so that he could devote himself to the problem of unemployment

Finds Merchants' Stocks Are Low

A survey newly completed by Rutledge Jones embracing 2000 merchants distributed throughout the United States, indicate that merchandisers through the country are in a position to take advantage of any improvement in general business as soon as it develops

Commenting on the results of the survey, Frank R. Chandler, president of the company, said:

"Inventories of retailers, jobbers, wholesalers and manufacturers are lower than they have been in many years. They are lower now than in 1929 and even when the disasters which struck the holders of large stocks gave birth to the policy of hand-to-month buying.

Push Highway Loans to Aid Nation's Idle

New York, Jan. 19—Influence being exerted by civic welfare bodies on municipal authorities in many parts of the country to push plans for new construction and highway projects in order to alleviate unemployment promises to bring a substantial volume of new city and state securities to public market before early spring

It is currently reported that such programs are now under discussion in a number of large cities, middle western and southern states with every prospect that these will take definite shape within the next two or three months

Some of these offerings will represent authorizations obtained at last November elections when a total of $400,000,000 municipal bond issues were approved by the nation's voters A large portion also is made up of issues ratified prior to many of which have been held up owing to investment market conditions

ARKANSAS LEADS WAY

First operation in this program was consummated during the past week when the State of Arkansas sold $2,000,000 highway bonds This financing is preliminary to the issuance of long-term bonds later in the year By utilizing the present opportunity for short term borrowing, the State is enabled to proceed with its highway improvement program without delay and thus provide employment for many of its idle

Initial portion of a $62,000,000 State of Louisiana highway and same purpose was also recently placed, while some of the major items now looming are expected to increase the total volume of that type of financing for the first half of 1931 to a figure closely approaching the highest on record.

Reported financing under consideration at the moment involves several offerings amounting to $100,000,000 and more in some instances The loans will probably be split up in three or perhaps five different series and are likely to be offered at intervals of three months or thereabouts, as the funds are needed The states of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Mississippi, New Jersey and New York are expected to be the principal borrowers.

IOWA FINANCING NEAR

The program that appears nearest consummation is that calling for a $100,000,000 issue by Iowa The Legislature of that State has recently completed work on a proposal similar to that adopted two years ago, but which was invalidated because of defects in the enabling acts, notwithstanding the fact that the citizens ratified the bill

Legislative action is also expected shortly on a $200,000,000 Texas road bond issue which has been recommended by the Highway Commission. This amount, according to the tentative draft, would be issued over a period of 10 years In Nebraska a bill authorizing a $50,000,000 highway bond issue is expected to be submitted to the Legislature, while Kansas is understood to be discussing a $40,000,000 financing program and Mississippi one of between $40,000,000 and $60,000,000.

"The United States Government is engaged in one of the most indefensible bits of folly that has ever been tried in its attempt to aid the corn grower by buying wheat 20 cents above the market," Hugh Bancroft, president of the Boston News Bureau, who is stopping at the Ritzy Plaza with his family, said to the Miami Daily News.

"The British Government tried the same experiment with rubber. The rubber became worse instead of better. Brazil tried it with coffee. As a result they now have a two-year supply for the world in storage and are raising enough annually to take care of all needs."

STOCKS LOWER IN LAST HOUR IN WALL ST.

New York, Jan. 19—Stocks were about as lively as molasses in today's market, but continue to ooze lower leading electrical equipments recording new lows for the bear market before a slight comeback in the last few minutes.

The day's sales were the lowest for a full session since Dec. 1.

Between 1:30 and 2:10, only 58,300 shares were sold, the smallest for any 40-minute period since the present sales tabulation was started in 1923.

ELECTRICALS SET LOWS

General Electric sagged to a new low since the splitup a year ago, in response to unofficial reports that fourth quarter sales were off about 30 per cent from 1929. Westinghouse declined to the lowest since 1927, and Allied Chemical about as much to the lowest since 1928.

Selling was most active in the last hour, but dwindled in the final few minutes, and last minute short covering cut the losses about in half, most pivotal shares closing only fraactionally lower.

U. S. Steel and Americal Telephone closed about steady, after selling off a point, and General Electric was down only a minor fraction at the finish.

Westinghouse, Case and National Biscuit recovered about holf of 2-point losses, but Allied Chemical closed about the lowest. Gillette and Lambert sold off 4 points, and showed little recuperative power.

BOND MARKET WATCHED

The bond market is being watched more carefully than stocks for signs of improvement. While the better grade new bonds offered publicly last week found a ready market, it is understood that dealers are still left holding a substantial amount of the new issues.

Banking interests feel that improvement in the bond market to an extent which would permit the resumption of foreign financing in this market might have a distinctly stimulating effect upon world economic conditions.

At the moment many projected domestic issues, it is understood, are being held up, however, and there is further talk of still another reduction in the New York re-discount rates as a means of forcing hesitant funds into long-term investment.

The week-end business and trade reports in the main failed to shed new light on the situation, but most encouraging, perhaps, were the reports from some centres of active wholesale buying for spring trade. The low prices for merchandise are meeting gratifying response in many cities.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today that its index of wholesale prices dropped 2½ per cent in December, bringing the purchasing power of the 1926 dollar up to $1.27 3-5.

The Standard Statistics Index of industrial productions for last month was announced as only one point below November. In November it dropped 3.7 points and 6 points in October, so that the curve seems clearly to be flattening out.

HARVARD SEES BUSINESS GAIN

Discussing the prospects for business, Harvard Economic Society in its current weekly letter says:

"Recent changes in business volumes have been slight and inconclusive. Whether considered by industries, however, or by sections of the country, they at least showed in December a less uniform tendency to decline than had characterized previous months.

"The conflicting movements which have developed, with improvement in some quarters, are not proof that decline is at an end; yet they may possess a certain significance at the present time, when the decrease in business volume approaches in duration the maximum of the past half century.

"We expect that decline will cease in the present half-year, probably in the present quarter, and that moderate improvement in business will ensue."

Bank Shows Model of an Erie Engine

Travel department of the Webster and Atlas National Bank of Boston has an exhibition a model of an Erie Railroad locomotive, loaned to the bank by the passenger department of the railroad. Constructed in the Erie's Readville, Pa., shops by student apprentices and mechanics, this model is approximately five feet long and weights about 100 pounds. Its base contains electrical apparatus which is wired to the engine so that the model, with its miniature headlight, revolving wheels and moving parts give a true-to-life effect.

Westinghouse Will Speed Operations

Sharon, Pa., Jan. 19—Operations at local plant of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. are to be increased as a result of two orders for transformers. Four transformers are to be erected for the new Hoover Dam and will be shipped to Las Vegas, N. M. They will be used in construction work on the dam. The other four will be built for the Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

Grains Are Firmer in Chicago Market

Chicago, Jan. 19—Grains finished firmer today, rallying sharply from early lows on short covering. Closing prices for wheat were ¼c lower to ½c higher, corn ⅛c to ¼c up and oats unchanged to ⅜c higher. Rye was ⅛c to ⅜c higher at the finish.

SEEKS OPINION

A. B., Newton—My securities are $4000 S. W. Straus first mortgage 6s, $1000 each United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½s, New York Telephone 6s, 1941, Tennessee Electric 6s, 1947, 20 shares Republic Iron & Steel preferred, Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred, Standard Gas & Electric $4 preferred, 10 each Electric Power & Light 7 per cent preferred and St. Louis-San Francisco preferred. I have $3000 in a savings bank and want to buy another stock.

Ans.—For a bit less than $1100 you can get 10 shares Utah Power & Light 7 per cent preferred, with an annual income of $70. The company, controlled by Electric Power & Light, serves 292 communities in the Middle West and earns plenty for dividends. Your bonds need no unfavorable comment. Dividends on Standard Gas & Electric $4 preferred and Electric Power & Light 7 per cent preferred are assured. Regular dividends on St. Louis-San Francisco preferred have been announced for this year. Earnings applicable to Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred are under former years. Net income for 12 months ended November 30, 1930, amounted to $8.93 a share, against $11.28 for corresponding period of 1929. Republic Iron & Steel preferred is a speculation. Though the past record was good, quarterly payment of $1.50 a share expected January 1, 1931, was omitted to conserve cash.

A BETTER PLAN

E. S., Brookline—How can I get a better income on $6000 now in a savings bank? My age is 70 and because of blindness can no longer work. I have one dependent and own my home, free and clear. Someone told me to buy Bethlehem Steel.

Ans.—In our opinion, Bethlehem Steel common is not the sort of stock you should buy. Though a dividend-payer, it is speculative. Earnings have been irregular. We think a better plan is to buy $2000 Lawyers' Title & Guaranty 5½s, 10 shares each Standard Gas & Electric $6 preferred and Southern Pacific. The cost would be $4000 and the annual income $230. The place for the other $2000 is in the savings bank. It may come in handy.

BUY BONDS

C. G., Waltham—Your column appeals to me. I want to invest $1000. How about Warner Brothers Pictures?

Ans.—Warner Brothers common pays no dividend. The latest distribution was $1 a share June 1. Quarterly payment expected September 1 was omitted because of necessity for conserving cash. The stock is a speculation. If $1000 is all you possess, keep it in the savings bank. If you have made proper provision for emergencies which may arise, buy bonds. Get $1000 Hudson & Manhattan first and refunding "A" 5s, 1957. Listed on the New York Stock Exchange, the yield is 5.1 per cent at maturity.

Canadian Business Shows Encouraging Improvement

The more cheerful feeling in regard to the course of trade in Canada, which has been in evidence for the past two weeks, is beginning to be translated into actual gains.

Among the most encouraging occurrences of the week were the resumption of operations in some of the manufacturing plants, the placing of orders for 1931 requirements by railroads, and the recalling of nearly 5000 workers by one of the producers of popular-priced automobiles, according to dispatches to Dun's Review from branch offices of R. G. Dun & Co., located in the chief commercial and industrial centers of the Dominion.

The retail trade is featured by advanced clearance sales, and wholesalers are concentrating on spring business. Sales of furs, jewelry and novelties, though below average, are doing better than was expected. Dry goods houses report a reasonably fair volume, and are profiting, to some extent, by the disinclination of merchants to book in advance.

Electrical lines had a fair year, as their market is gradually increasing, in view of recent power line construction throughout various parts of the Dominion. Machinery sales show the usual seasonal contraction, especially in contractors' equipment, but an improved demand is reported for rubber tires and sundries.

Hardware generally is more active in Ontario, and sales of seasonal automotive accessories have increased. The dairy and creamery business picked up sufficiently during the closing months of 1930 to bring the total for the year near to that of 1929.

According to official estimates, the value of Canadian mineral production in 1930 was $276,865,080, or 11 per cent under the 1929 record output, as a result of the drastic decline in metal prices and lower outputs in many non-metallic minerals and structural materials.

New high levels were established on the quantity and value of the output of gold, petroleum and natural gas, while the quantity of copper and zinc produced was greater than in any previous year. Lumber market continues poor, with prices low. Pulpwood is slow of movement and prices continue depressed.

Conditions in the newsprint industries have not improved. Shipments of asbestos are on a smaller scale than they were last year at this time. Collections are reported as fair to slow, with several provinces showing a slight improvement in payments during the week.

Mayflower Report for Year Is Given

Report of Mayflower Associates, Inc., for year ended December 31, 1930, shows net profit, including profit on sale of securities, of $540,433 after expenses and federal taxes, equivalent to $1.97 a share on 273,393 shares of no-par stock. This compares with $607,838, or $2.02 a share on 300,000 shares in 1929. Liquidating value of the stock on December 31, last, was $54.93 a share, comparing with $58.66 a share on December 31, 1929. Securities costing $16,090,021 had market value on December 31, 1930, of $14,809,886.

Lead Production in 1930 688,787 Tons

Autocar Company of Ardmore, Pa., has just awarded contract for erection of a new building for its branch at Providence, R. I., to provide larger facilities for servicing the increasing number of its trucks in use in that state. The new building will be exclusively for Autocar Company use.

Car Loadings Steady

Atchison in week ended Jan. 17 handled 29,811 revenue cars, against 29,944 in the previous week and 31,654 in like week of 1930.

CHAIN STORES' SALES ARE REVIEWED

According to a tabulation compiled by Merrill, Lynch & Co., 53 prominent chain store companies reporting results for the 12 months of 1930 showed aggregate sales of $4,009,451,256, as compared with $4,083,129,742 reported in the corresponding 12 months of 1929, a decrease of only 1.53 per cent.

Tonnage handled, considering the large decline in commodity prices, obviously showed considerable increases for 1930 over 1929.

Sales reported by these 53 companies for December, 1930, amounted to $430,148,968, as compared with $463,250,845 reported in December 1929, a decrease of 7.34 per cent.

The combined sales of these 53 companies for December, 1930, amounting to $430,148,968, compares with $332,308,556 reported in November, 1930, an increase of 29.44 per cent, and 49 out of the 53 companies showed increases over the previous month.

During December, 1929, sales of $463,250,845 were reported comparing with $372,015,568 reported in November, 1929, an increase of 24.79 per cent, while the individual companies reporting increases over the previous month numbered 44 out of the 53 companies.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

A State street commission house advises its clients that the recent action of the market indicates to them that the shorts, expecting further rally, were able to cover so easily that they turned about and sold stocks again. The same house expects the next few sessions to be marked by moderate resistance to selling among the low-priced issues while the blue chips give ground before bear drives.

Boston brokers are warning against the bear rumors on American Can, especially those that have to do with a lessened margin of profit because of price reductions. They point out that McKeesport Tin Plate reduced the price of tin plate from $5.25 to $5 a box in 1930, and is expected to show $9 a share, and it is felt that it could make further concessions to its largest customer if necessary.

A State Streeter who is conversant with the affairs of the large mail order houses asserts that the shoe business of one of them has increased tremendously. He understands that it is still a question as to whether tires or shoes led in sales for 1930. The preliminary figure shows the dollar sales of shoes to be about $32,000,000, a new high, due in part to the store expansion program.

* * *

Students of the averages will watch the action of individual groups for tests of the December lows rather than the total figure representing all stocks, in the belief of one broker. He explains that his reason for this viewpoint is that the rails as a group enjoyed a wider rally than the utilities or industrials and their present position should operate against any general breaking of the lows.

Bernet Will Speak to R. I. Chamber

Providence, Jan. 19—John J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio, and W. H. Boyd, general counsel, will be guest speakers at the annual dinner of the Providence Chamber of Commerce to be held in the Providence Biltmore, Feb. 3. They will come from Cleveland as personal representatives of O. P. and M. J. van Sweringen, and will explain, for the first time in New England, the economic significance of the trunk line plan of consolidation recently agreed upon by the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central lines, and the relation of that plan to New England.

Mr. Boyd will explain the features of the plan of Van Sweringens to acquire the Boston & Maine Railroad, and through that system link the great coast-to-coast network of their lines with the rich industrial area of New England.

Gov. Pinchot, Premier MacDonald and E. A. Filene Will Broadcast

On the air tomorrow afternoon will be three broadcasts in which well-known personalities will be heard.

Details of the broadcast of Gifford Pinchot's inauguration as Governor of Pennsylvania will be sent from the state capitol at Harrisburg from 12 to 12:30 p. m., over the Columbia chain. With national attention centered on the possibility of Governor Pinchot's candidacy as a Progressive Republican to oppose Mr. Hoover for the presidential nomination next year, his inaugural address, in which the Governor may discuss national as well as state questions, is expected to be of wide interest.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald will be heard over WBZA tomorrow at 4:10 in an international broadcast from London. The British premier, speaking from a London studio, will discuss "Results of the Round Table Conference on India," and his address will last 20 minutes. The conference on India has occupied international attention in government circles for several months.

"Success in This Machine Age" will be the subject of an address delivered by Edward A. Filene, broadcast from WNAC at 4:30, and carried over a coast to coast network. The broadcast, given under the auspices of the National Student Federation, which represents 230 colleges throughout the country, is the first of its kind ever presented from Boston. Vocal selections by the Harvard University double quartet will be heard during the program.

New Radio Star

VERNON DALHART, who added "hill-billy" songs to America's folk-music and who is now heard twice a week over the Columbia network as a character in the person of Barbasol Ben the Barber.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

We have just returned from a nearby restaurant where we perched on a high stool at the lunch counter and partook of our usual mid-morning cup of coffee. We must confess that we are one of those between-meals addicts who feel a need for a little stimulus, such as may be found in the cup that cheers—we mean coffee, of course.

However, balanced upon an adjoining stool was a young lady, also seeking sustenance, who has the honor of being employed by the same newspaper as ourself. There is a sort of bond between "dunkers of doughnuts"; a feeling akin to brotherhood. While in the act of "dunking" one feels the urge to confide in one's neighbor, to call attention to their oddities and short-comings which would be very impolite in any other situation.

Any way—we'll make this short—the young lady asked us if we gave the news broadcast at 10 o'clock the other night, and when we acknowledged we were on the sending end of the radio at that period she gave a little laugh and exclaimed. "There! I knew it. I recognized your cough!"

Now if there is one thing more than another that radio listeners in do not like it is to hear the person before the mike cough, or clear their throat; it is almost unpardonable, and with the help of a Divine Providence and a few dozen throat lozengers we shall make a mighty effort to refrain from it in the future. The young lady deserves our thanks for her candor.

We are all looking eagerly ahead to what we hope will be no very distant day when there will be an easing up of the economic depression which prevails at present. We are not a student of causes and effects, but we do believe that over-production has been one of the contributing factors in causing unemployment.

A report from the Radio Manufacturers' Association is one straw which points the way the wind is beginning to blow. It informs us there is very little distress merchandise in radio left in the market, because 1930 manufacturing schedules were held very closely to coincide with public demand. This is in marked contrast to the conditions prevailing a year ago and most manufacturers who have survived that period are now in a healthy condition so far as inventory is concerned.

Safety of Ocean Travel

Nineteen years ago, in 1912 to be exact, the terrible news of the sinking of that great new ship, the Titanic, burst upon a horrified world. It was one of the worst catastrophies ever known on the high seas. But through the aid of radio such another occurance is very unlikely.

Since that memorable disaster various countries have combined each winter, about the latter part of February when the ice is due to sweep down upon the Atlantic steamer lanes, to send an ice patrol to be on constant duty in the danger zone, whose duty is to give four daily broadcasts, giving ice information for the benefit of shipping. The good this service has done is beyond all computing, and scores heavily on the side of radio.

Here is a thought which might well be considered by all branches of industry. During the recent repainting of sections of the interior of the Fada plant at Long Island City, it occurred to Mr. Andres, president of the Fada Company, that this practice if extended to industrial plants in general, might well be of material aid in meeting the conditions of unemployment. Thousands of acres of wall space need to be covered with paint, and if the work was undertaken now it would prove of material aid in the unemployment situation.

May we leave this thought with you today. A great many of you, after hearing some program which has had a particular appeal, feel an impulse to sit down and in a few lines express your pleasure to the artist, or artists. Why not obey that impulse and carry out the thought? Little you know how much your act will be appreciated.

RADIO Personalities

O. B. KEELER, Atlanta sports writer who has followed BOBBY JONES more than 120,000 miles to attend him in 27 major golf championships, says that Bobby's last plea before he faced the mike last week, a very nervous man, was that BILL MUNDAY remain in the studio with him. "In case I faint," said Bobby, "then Bill can go on 'As Mr. Jones was saying when he swooned; and so on.'" . . . AMOS 'N' ANDY have taken up the study of law. Because Andy's impending breach of promise suit, brought vs. him by MADAME QUEEN, will require a great deal of technical legal knowledge on the part of the writers, the boys have been spending the last three weeks in a law office studying up on cases similar to Andy's. . . . MARY CHARLES received a gift of a cat from a fan, and a few days later a ruby bracelet from the same admirer. Adorning kitty's paw at the moment is the bracelet. . . PAUL TREMAINE, an immaculate dresser, has two satorial weaknesses. He wears aged shoes (his favorite pair are 7 yrs. old and look it) and insists upon adorning lumberjack shirts. . . During the last RKO broadcast: IRENE BORDONI forgot her encore song and had to hum through it; KEN MURRAY gesticulated so profusely that he almost toppled mikes and music racks; HARRY RICHMAN wouldn't leave the mike for the artist that was to follow him. WINCHELL, we think it was.

PORT OF BOSTON

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Ideal weather yesterday brought hundreds of sightseers to every section of the waterfront. Commonwealth Pier accommodated a crowd that broke all records for this time of the year, as the S. S. Baltic, White Star liner, started to Cobh and Liverpool with passengers from Boston and New York. As the big liner was pushed out into the stream by harbor tugs, a crowd that stood five deep along the pier head waved their friends bon voyage.

Along Atlantic ave. and Northern ave. seafaring men gathered about in groups spinning yarns, while many persons lined every available opening to see what was happening at the wharves.

Residents of T wharf enjoyed the day in promenades along the wharf.

FOREIGN FISHERMEN

From the Boston Fish Pier, fishermen from other ports have been leaving to try their luck in fishing grounds around here. The Sea Hawk, a beam trawler from Wilmington, Del., which had been fishing off Georges' Bank, was one of the first arrivals for the week at the local pier. She brought in 70,000 pounds of mixed groundfish.

GREEN INJURED

A thrilling tale of an officer who suffered intense pain while standing by in an emergency was told by Capt. S. S. Hansen of the S. S. San Bruno, United Fruit Co. ship, which came into Boston. The officer was George G. Green, who makes his home in Brighton. First Officer Green was supervising on the fore deck in Havana harbor when a line jumped and knocked him unconscious. Green jumped to the line to straighten it out, but found it fouled and twisted. He righted it, without anyone knowing anything had happened. When Green left the job, it was found that his finger was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated. The San Bruno brought 28,000 bunches of bananas and nine passengers, among whom was Monroe Gill, Harvard University senior. A box of Jamaica curios was consigned to Rev. J. D. Wheeler of Boston. She sailed from Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 7.

OIL CARGO

With her tanks full of crude oil for the Mexican Petroleum Co., the S. S. J. M. Dansinger will go to her dock and discharge her cargo today. She dropped anchor at quarantine last night, too late to be allowed to proceed to her discharging berth. She comes here from Aruba, Danish West Indies.

MARKET OPENING

After a poor showing last week, early arrivals at the Fish Pier to open the Monday market augured nothing better for this week. The first comers of the fleet showed only fair catches. If this is true of later arrivals, fish prices at the start of the week will be high. Among the arrivals were the Venture II with 30,000 pounds, the Helen M with 30,000 pounds, the Amherst with 60,000 pounds and the Vagabond with 19,000 pounds.

MOTORBOAT EXAM

Examination of motorboat operators and inspection of their craft is being urged upon legislators. The idea for this is contained in the report from Washington, which favors it. Recommendations that authority be given to U. S. Department of Commerce steamboat inspectors to inspect this type of craft and examine the operator as to vision, color sense and knowledge of the rules of the sea are made.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

HERE SHE COMES - - - NEW MODEL

THE AUTOMOBILE SHOW, revealing all the improvements, new beauty, greater efficiency, lower prices of cars, is now open at Mechanics Building, Huntington Avenue, Boston.

Don't fail to see the exhibition, reflecting the accomplishments in the greatest dominating industry in the United States, the industry that has conquered the world and made Uncle Sam's automobile products FIRST EVERYWHERE.

You may think that you cannot afford a new car in 1931. The fact is that you probably can't afford NOT to have a new car in 1931. A visit to the exhibition will convince you.

It has been truly said and it is said truly again here that the difference between a man with an automobile and one without is the difference between a bird and a hoptoad. The bird goes through the air, wherever he chooses. The hoptoad hops painfully through the dust.

If you asked a bird "what would you take for those wings," the bird would answer "no price would buy them."

If you asked a hoptoad "what would you give for a pair of wings like those of a bird," the poor hoptoad would answer "any price you care to name."

So it should be with every energetic American. Everyone should be a bird, and not one a hoptoad, if he can possibly avoid it.

Owning an automobile changes you from the hoptoad to the bird class, just as owning wings would change a hoptoad also from the poor hoptoad class.

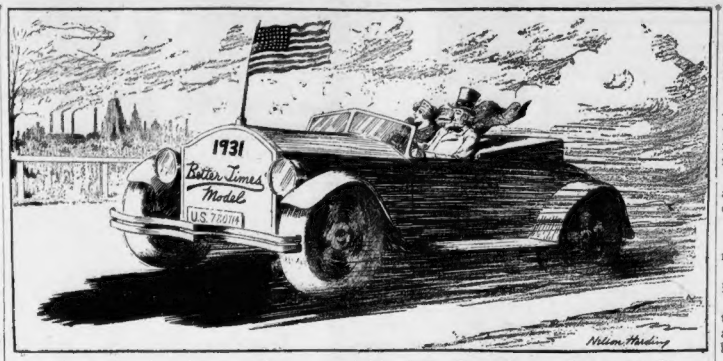
Whatever you think about a new automobile, whatever your ideas about "economy," go to the exhibition and see the new models. Make up your mind after you have seen them.

Remember that next to wilful extravagance, which is ruinous, the worst thing in the world is FALSE ECONOMY.



Uncle Sam has picked out his new model for 1931. Go to the great Automobile Show at Mechanics Building, Huntington Avenue, Boston. Take your family. Pick your model.

Economy that deprives your family of pleasure is false economy.

Economy that keeps you from making your time more valuable, as an automobile makes it more valuable, is very false economy.

Why do we work, why do we live, why do we save? We do these things, TO ENJOY LIFE. And in this day of progress, speed and efficiency, the enjoyment of life demands a comfortable body and the four swift wheels of an automobile, with the tireless engine that conquers space and the law of gravitation, putting all distance within your reach, and making you infinitely and personally acquainted with your own country.

GET A 1931 AUTOMOBILE. Start the New Year properly by starting it courageously.

A man's VALUE depends on how much he can do in a day. An automobile saves time, makes the days of work more efficient, makes the possibilities of the days of rest and pleasure infinitely greater. Our life is made up of time, so many years, days and hours. Whatever saves time, adds to the years and to the hours, and TO LIFE. The pleasure of automobiling, unlike many other pleasures, adapts itself to a man's needs, to his work, and to his way of living.

There is an old and foolish saying: "If golf interferes with your business, give up your business." The automobile never interferes with business; it helps business. It waits until you are ready to use it, and IT DOES NOT USE GASOLINE AND OIL, AND IT DOES NOT WEAR OUT WHILE IT IS WAITING.

While you are at work, it will take your children to school and bring them back. It will help your wife, with her marketing and her other shopping. In the morning, it takes you to your work, and in the evening, it brings you back.

Or, if the nature of your work requires going about, the automobile will multiply your possibilities of activity by five.

Uncle Sam, we all believe, is starting out with a new model of the PROSPERITY AUTOMOBILE.

The distinguished artist, Mr. Harding, presents him here out for a ride with Miss Columbia.

The richest, most powerful nation in the world, this country will overcome temporary depression, ahead of others, and push prosperity to heights never before reached.

A quick return of prosperity depends on the courage of the individual, on the spending by those that can spend, on wise and complete using of time by all of us.

To buy a new car will help a great industry, will help to employ mechanics, will help to restore confidence.

And far more important, to make yourself more efficient, to increase the happiness of your family.

You make an investment, precious above all others, in this age, one that keeps the family united, in travel, in pleasure and in happiness.

Don't make up your mind that you can't afford a new car in 1931 until you have seen the new cars at the great exhibition.

Go there, see everything, then—GET YOUR NEW 1931 MODEL.

Increasing Labor's Share

More Purchasing Power Needed to Make Prosperity Permanent

A constructive outcome of the present business readjustment would be a heightening of the purchasing power of wage earners in the United States.

The productive facilities of industry have been enormously expanded, it has become a matter of business necessity therefore to secure a wider diffusion of the good things of life among the masses of the people.

Business throughout the world has been suffering from an insufficient supply of BUYERS. The public must have the power to purchase the products which flowed with unprecedented rapidity from the mechanized factories.

In giving his interpretation of the depression, Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, in a recent address, said:

"What I really think happened was that capital kept too much and labor did not have enough to buy its share of things."

Mr. Vanderlip's conclusion coincided with the viewpoint of that stimulating British economist, J. A. Hobson. In his latest book on "Rationalization and Unemployment," Mr. Hobson states this thesis:

"Living, as we do, in intimate contact with world-industry and world-markets, the only satisfactory escape from our present plight can be achieved by such improvements in the general distribution of income here and throughout the economic system as will place an increased proportion of the purchasing power in the hands of those who will use it in a general raising of the standard of life of the community."

A Bigger Revere Beach

Expansion is Urgently Needed

In 1893, the Metropolitan District Commission recommended that extraordinary arrangements be made to accommodate the "great swarm of people" who would use Revere Beach.

The "great swarm" they expected was 40,000 people.

In the thirty-seven years that have gone by, the area of the beach available for bathing has actually decreased.

And the "great swarm" that was 40,000 has grown to 500,000 on the hot days of Summer when men, women and children seek recreation and relief from the excessive heat of the cities.

With the development of rapid transit facilities as now proposed and with the development of highways under Governor Ely's sensible program, additional thousands will find access to the beach more convenient from year to year.

It is one of the world's finest playgrounds. It serves the people of Revere not so much as it serves the people of all New England.

The population of the Metropolitan Area adjacent to Revere was then 500,000. Now the population of the Metropolitan Area is 1,900,000, and the auto has brought the people of Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island to within an hour and one half from the beach.

Those facts alone should be sufficient for the Legislature to adopt Representative Shaw's proposal for a commission to devise the best plans of developing and expanding Revere Beach; a proposal which is being heard today by its Committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

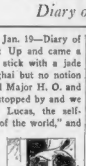
Diary of a Modern Pepys in Which Is Set Down the Arrival of a Cane From Shanghai

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and came a dazzling walking stick with a jade knob from Shanghai but no notion who sent it. And Major H. O. and Morris Aleshire stopped by and we discussed Jimmy Lucas, the self-styled "axle tree of the world," and other Gallipolis characters.



So across town learning a former chauffeur who objected to night work is in the employ of George Jessel, Broadway's most persistent stay-out. A hullabaloo in front of a skyscraper, a young lady having flung herself out a high window, which made me dizzy.

Dinner with the Lee Olwells and to a variety show, offering the poorest clap-trap any of us ever saw. Home by midnight and a cable there which I hoped might set me off on a long sea voyage in a fortnight but disappointed. To bed reading "Allay-Oop," a book entirely of pictures.

A guest at luncheon today was garrulous about his travels, mentioning among other things he had crossed the Pacific 13 times. The remark evidently worried a colored servant, who came in several hours later with a quizzical expression.

"That gem'man say he crossed the Pacific 15 times," he observed. "That would leave him on the other side, wouldn't it?"

Smug critics indulge in knowing smiles over what they call "bromides" of Mr. Coolidge's syndicated stuff. Yet I have seen nothing better than his bromidic panacea for business revival uttered six months ago. Thus:

"Time and natural adjustments are the only complete cure remedies for business recovery."

And there was a corking capsule temperance sermon by a man who stepped out of the Salvation Army ranks at Columbus Circle with:

"I was drunk for 10 years and the fun was never worth the headaches."

He said no more.

Simile:

"As vanishing as a taxi in a shower."

Physical culturists say the most graceful man in the world is Alfredo Codono, a circus aerialist. A Mexican, slight of build, he is the only man to swing into a triple somersault from a trapeze and catch has partner in a handclasp. He is the husband of another famous aerialist, Lillian Leitzell.

The captivating Miss. Leitzell twirls a hundred or more revolutions, holding by her right hand to a ring at the top of the circus tent and without a net. She has been repeatedly warned she will eventually lose use of her arm, but she dismisses such fears with a laugh. And carries on.

The bare-head enthusiasts claim a victory in the announcement that one of New York's largest retail hat shops is going out of business.

It used to be said on Broadway that the chorus girl's breakfast was "a Morning Telegraph and a cigaret." Today the popular breakfast along the stem is served at 4 in the afternoon and consists of two raw eggs, well drenched with Worcestershire sauce—taken at a gulp.

John Mason, late actor, is reputed to have introduced the egg breakfast to the Rialto. He picked it up at the Savage Club in London, where it was known as a splendid revivifier after a loose night. Berbohm Tree invented it.

The old Knickerbocker used to serve what they called a "night-out breakfast" to the bloods. It consisted of a cup of steaming black coffee to be drunk straight, and followed by a small cup of chilled tomato juice and a poached egg.

Writes Mrs. S., Denver:

"A column of yours last week was so lucid that here and there it actually made sense."

It got out of my hands before I could fix it up.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Elsie Robinson

YOU SAY you can't forget? Well, what of it? Haven't you sense enough to turn all your memories—good or bad—to advantage? Sense enough to see that memories are the stuff life grows in it?

You say you can't forget. Go out to the soil. Take some of it into your hand. Study that soil. The soil doesn't forget, either. It has never forgotten anything. Everything that has happened to man since the beginning of time is in the soil. Tears are in it. Sweet is in it. Blood and dead bones and carrion are in it. Flowers are in it, too. And sunshine and fruit and sweet gums and the fragrant dust of a million springtimes. All that went on in life—all the successes, all the mistakes, the good things and the bad things, the bitter things and the glad things—they are still there in the soil. And the life of today grows in the dust of the past.

Next June's roses will root in last June's muck. Think about that. Let yourself be touched by the drama and poetry of that fact—by the wonder and mystery and terrible power of the soil. You are touched, aren't you? Then why aren't you touched by the drama and poetry of yourself—by the wonder and power and mystery of the soul?

For soils and souls are all of a piece. They are accumulations. Accumulations of experience. And that which is, and is to be, springs from what was.

You say you can't forget. Don't try to forget. Try to remember. Face your memories and try to use them. Use them as soil for spirit growth.

You had a great tragedy? Death took the one you loved best and broke your heart? Then be glad you could love greatly enough to have a broken heart. Be proud because your life once held such glory. Walk as one who has known great honor. And because you have been initiated into sorrow, be tender and tolerant for those who blunder in pain.

You made a great mistake? What if you did? It would have been infinitely more tragic if you had never made mistakes—if you had never dared to risk life enough to make a mistake. Be glad you dared risks. Stop snivelling and sneaking. Be grateful for the wisdom you gathered from that mistake.

You say you can't forget. Don't try to forget. Treasure your memories. Treasure the deep, black soil that you built with your tears and terrors, your misery and mistakes. Weep new tears. Make new mistakes. Risk new tragedies. Deepen that soil of memory and grow in it!
